

The Savoy Cocktail Book

$6.95

A revised and up-to-date version of the original (first published in 1930) comprehensive guide to the preparation of alcoholic libations.

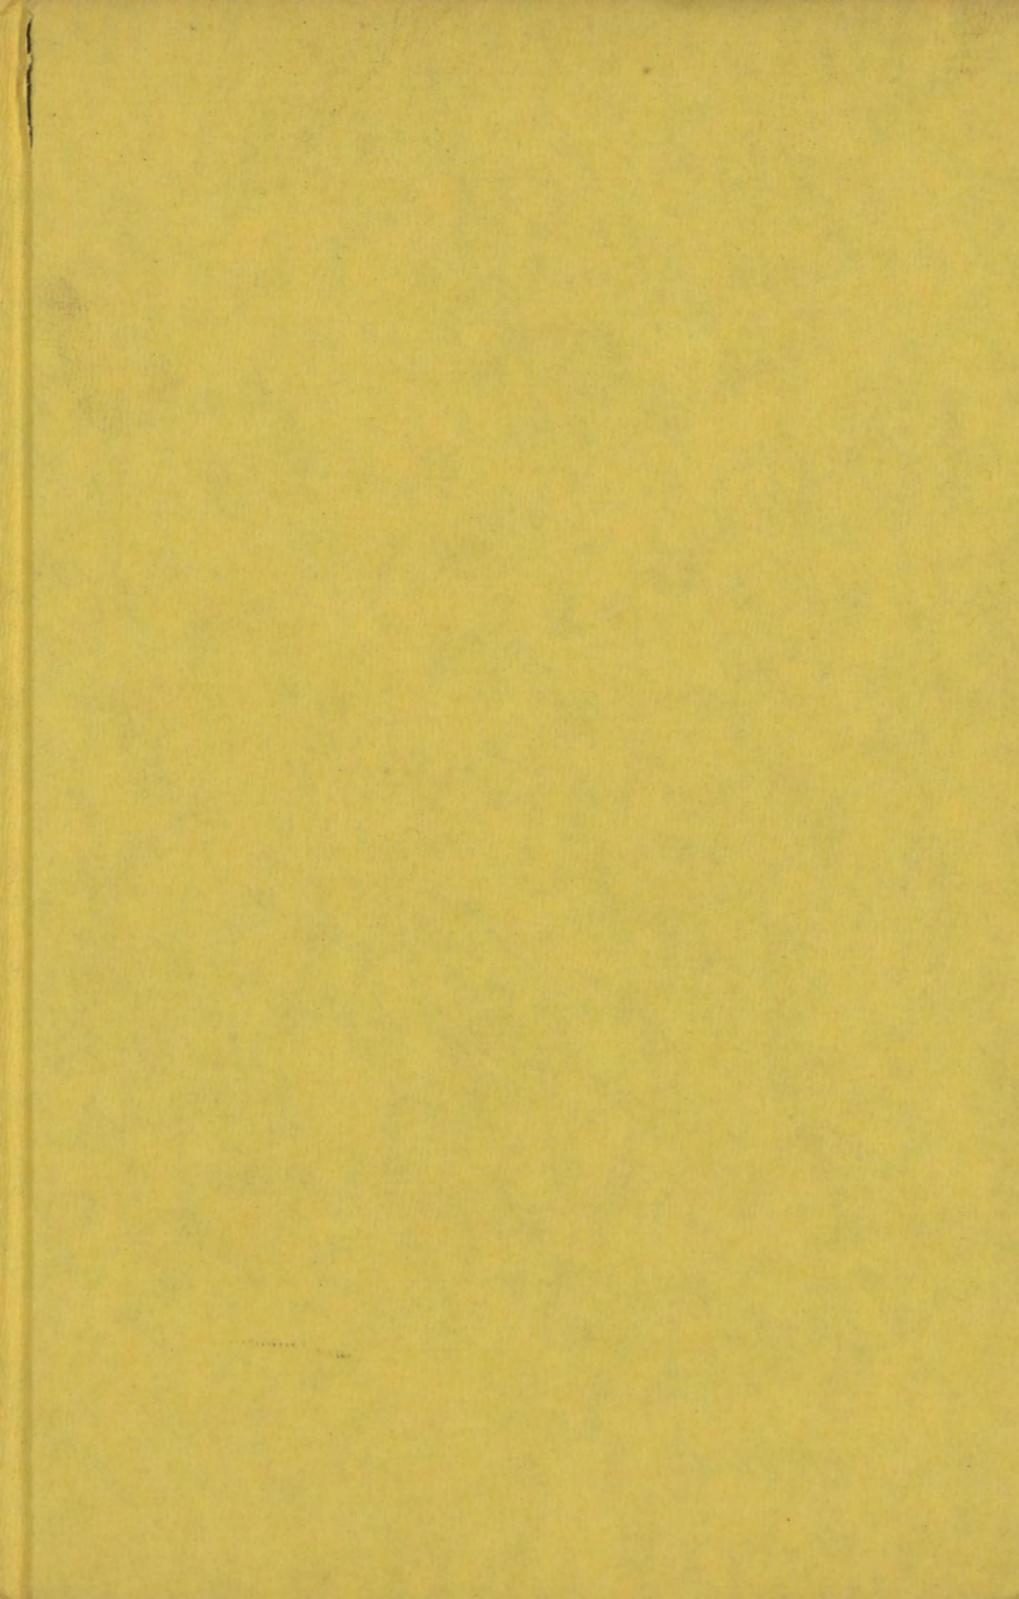

The Savoy Cocktail Book

Compiled by Harry Craddock of the Savoy Hotel, London and completely updated and expanded to include drinks and mixing techniques as yet undiscovered at the end of the "Roaring Twenties."

With its sensational recipes and beautiful full-color Art Deco drawings and decorations by Gilbert Rumbold, THE SAVOY COCKTAIL BOOK is guaranteed to be the best "bar" reader you can own.

When most American drinkers were sneaking into speakeasies or mixing drinks in castiron bathtubs one step ahead of the "Feds," Harry Craddock was performing magical acts with alcohol (with the approval of Scotland Yard) at the bar of the world-renowned Savoy Hotel in London. His almost religious dedication to his art inspired

“ If all be true that I do think,
There are five reasons why men drink,
Good wine, a friend, or being dry,
Or lest we should be by-and-by,
Or any other reason why.”

Henry Aldrich (1647—1710).

The Savoy Cocktail Book

BEING in the main a complete compendium of the Cocktails, Rickeys, Daisies, Slings, Shrubs, Smashes, Fizzes, Juleps, Cobblers, Fixes, and other Drinks, known and vastly appreciated in this year of grace 1930, with sundry notes of amusement and interest concerning them, together with subtle Observations upon Wines and their special occasions.

BEING in the particular elucidation of the Manners and Customs of people of quality in a period of some equality.

The Cocktail Recipes in this Book have been compiled by HARRY CRADDOCK

OF THE
SAVOY HOTEL
LONDON.

The Decorations are by Gilbert Rumbold.

This Arno Press edition, published in 1976 is an updated version of the book originally published in London in 1930 by Constable & Company Ltd.

A Note to the Reader:

This edition has been reproduced from a copy of the original "SAVOY COCKTAIL BOOK" published in 1930. It reflects the style, flavor and, unfortunately, the mild imperfections of the printing processes of that era.

PREFACE.

MANY have been the books written about the proper way of partaking of wine. Paris, London and New York have given us many good little Cocktail Books.

But where, Oh, where is the book that gives the earnest student all? Every beautiful and perfect Wine, each with its own special and perfect occasion, and every Cocktail known? We searched, and found it not, so thought it as well to sit down and get it put together.

Presumption? Yes,—and we have been warned against it! Writers never get paid. Anyhow we're so rich we don't care if it costs us millions. A complete, and absolutely complete book on Drinks and Drinking, Cocktails and Wines, has simply GOT to be written. Nearly all the kind friends in the world are going to read it through—they may prevent it from being too dull.

FOREWORD.

IF everyone knew even a little about the absorbing subject of absorbing alcohol there would be even less Prohibition in the United States of America than there is now. The great mistake is that everyone knows either too little or too much. Those who know too little either do not admit their lack of knowledge and make an enemy of alcohol by abusing it, or are so terrified of it that they regard it as being something supernatural and satanic and utterly anathema. Those who know too much about it become intolerant of every form of liquid which does not happen to be the one concerning which they consider themselves to be expert.

Wine was created for the solace of man, as a slight compensation, we are told, for the creation of woman, who was merely created to keep him on the move and busy generally. In moments of stress and strain wine is man's greatest friend. Once, many years ago, a great and good man, somewhat my senior in age, made a very shrewd and important observation to me. We had been discussing the misfortunes of a mutual friend who had been working so hard that he had forced himself into a state of brain-fever : a salient point in the case was that he imagined he could keep his brain clearer by eating and drinking extremely little, whereas this abstemiousness on his part had only succeeded in hastening his collapse.

" My boy," said my friend to me, " Let this be a solemn lesson to us all to eat as much good food, and drink as much good wine, as we possibly can, when and wherever the opportunity presents itself, no matter what it costs —or who pays for it."

A FEW HINTS FOR THE YOUNG MIXER.

1. Ice is nearly always an absolute essential for any Cocktail.
2. Never use the same ice twice.
3. Remember that the ingredients mix better in a shaker rather larger than is necessary to contain them.
4. Shake the shaker as hard as you can : don't just rock it : you are trying to wake it up, not send it to sleep !
5. If possible, ice your glasses before using them.
6. Drink your Cocktail as soon as possible. Harry Craddock was once asked what was the best way to drink a Cocktail : " Quickly," replied that great man, " while it's laughing at you ! "

HISTORICAL NOTE

MOST of the people one meets in places where Cocktails grow have an idea that they know the origin of the word "Cocktail"; none of them, however, agree as to what that origin is, and in any case they are all wrong, as they always put that origin somewhere between sixty and seventy years ago, whereas in The Balance, an American periodical, of May 13, 1806, we read that: "Cocktail is a stimulating liquor, composed of spirits of any kind, sugar, water, and bitters—it is vulgarly called bittered sling and is supposed to be an excellent electioneering potion." This is the earliest reference to the Cocktail that I have been able to find in print.

Historians have been misled by the word "Cocktail" into imagining that it was once in some way connected with the plumage of the domestic rooster. But this is not so. The true, authentic and incontrovertible story of the origin of the Cocktail is as follows:—

Somewhere about the beginning of the last century there had been for some time very considerable friction between the American Army of the Southern States and King Axolotl VIII of Mexico. Several skirmishes and one or two battles took place, but eventually a truce was called and the King agreed to meet the American general and to discuss terms of peace with him.

The place chosen for the meeting was the King's Pavilion, and thither the American general repaired, and was accommodated with a seat on the Bench, as it were, next to King A. himself. Before opening negotiations, however, His Majesty asked the general, as one man to another, if he would like a drink, and being an American general he of course said yes. The King gave a command and in a few moments there appeared a lady of entrancing and overwhelming beauty, bearing in her slender fingers a gold cup encrusted with rubies and containing a strange potion of her own brewing. Immediately an awed and ominous hush fell upon the assembly, for the same thought struck everyone at the same time, namely, that as there was only one cup either the King or the general would have to drink out of it first, and that the other would be bound to feel insulted. The situation was growing tense when the cup-bearer seemed also to realize its difficulty, for with a sweet smile she bowed her shapely head in reverence to the assembly and drank the drink herself. Everything was saved and the conference came to a satisfactory ending, but before leaving, the general asked if he might know the name of the lady who had shown such tact. "That," proudly said the King, who had never seen the lady before, "is my daughter Coctel."

"Right," replied the general, "I will see that her name is honoured for evermore by my Army."

Coctel, of course, became Cocktail, and there you are! There exists definite unquestionable proof of the truth of this story, but no correspondence upon the subject can in any circumstances be entertained.

So much for the early history of Cocktails. Since those days the Art of the Cocktail has developed very considerably, and in the following pages you will find the essence of the Art of Harry Craddock of the Savoy, the King of Cocktail Shakers, who has inspired, disciplined, ordered and arranged it. There are few people in the world who can match his vast knowledge of liquids of all kinds, of how to mix them, and of how to create new cocktails for all great or state occasions, so that it is in all confidence that this book is set before you—the confidence that if anything should have been omitted it is in all probability not worth including.

At the same time, a few blank pages have been left at the end of the list of Cocktails for the addition of any new Cocktails that may be invented in the future.

 5 Dashes Orange Curaçao.
Shake well and strain into cocktail glass.

BLUE BIRD COCKTAIL.

Use two large silver-plated mugs, with handles.

1 Wineglass Scotch Whisky.
 1 Wineglass Boiling Water.

Put the Whisky into one mug, and the boiling water into the other, ignite the Whisky with fire, and while blazing mix both ingredients by pouring them four or five times from one mug to the other. If well done, this will have the appearance of a continued stream of liquid fire.

Sweeten with one teaspoonful of powdered white sugar, and serve in a small bar tumbler, with a piece of lemon peel.

The Blue Blazer does not have a very euphonious or classic name, but it tastes better to the palate than it sounds to the ear. A beholder gazing for the first time upon an experienced artist compounding this beverage, would naturally come to the conclusion that it was a nectar for Pluto rather than Bacchus. The novice in mixing this beverage should be careful not to scald himself. To become proficient in throwing the liquid from one mug to the other, it will be necessary to practise for some time with cold water.

$\frac{1}{2}$ Dry Gin.
 $\frac{1}{4}$ Lemon Juice or Lime Juice. $\frac{1}{4}$ Maraschino.
 1 Dash Blue Vegetable Extract.

"The moment had arrived for a Daiquiri. It was a delicate compound ; it elevated my contentment to an even higher pitch. Unquestionably the cocktail on my table was a dangerous agent, for it held in its shallow glass bowl slightly encrusted with undissolved sugar the power of a contemptuous indifference to fate ; it set the mind free of responsibility ; obliterating both memory and tomorrow, it gave the heart an adventitious feeling of superiority and momentarily vanquished all the celebrated, the eternal fears. Yes, that was the danger of skilfully prepared intoxicating drinks . . . The word ‘intoxicating’ adequately expressed their power, their menace to orderly, monotonous resignation. A word, I thought further, debased by moralists from its primary ecstatic content . . . but then, with a fresh Daiquiri and a sprig of orange blossom in my button-hole, it meant less than nothing.”

A short extract from Joseph Hergesheimer’s “San Cristobal de la Habana,” which contains much wisdom concerning Drinks, Cigars and the Art of Fine Living.

(Quoted by kind permission of the publishers, Messrs. William Heineman Ltd., and Messrs. Alfred A. Knopf, Inc.)

- 1 Teaspoonful of Powdered Sugar.
 $\frac{1}{4}$ Baked Apple.
 1 Glass Calvados or Applejack.
Use stem glass and fill with Boiling Water. Grate nutmeg on top.

APPLE TODDY.

FLIPS.

The Flip, particularly the variety made with Rum, is renowned as an old-fashioned drink of great popularity among sailors. It is usually made in the following manner :—

- 1 Egg.
 $\frac{1}{2}$ Tablespoon of Powdered Sugar.
 1 Glass of Rum, Brandy, Port Wine, Sherry, or Whisky.

RUM FLIP.

Shake well and strain into medium size glass. Grate a little nutmeg on top. In cold weather a dash of Jamaica Ginger can be added.

ALE FLIP.

Put on the fire in a saucepan one quart of Ale, and let it boil ; have ready the whites of two eggs and the yolks of four, well beaten up separately ; add them by degrees to four tablespoonsful of moist sugar, and half a nutmeg grated. When all are well mixed, pour on the boiling Ale by degrees, beating up the mixture continually ; then pour it rapidly backward and forward from one jug to another, keeping one jug raised high above the other ; till the flip is smooth and finely frothed. This is a good remedy to take at the commencement of a cold.

ORANGE BLOSSOM COOLER.

Shake well with shaved ice 1 or 2 jiggers Gin; juice of $\frac{1}{2}$ Orange, 1 teaspoon Sugar and strain into highball glass, filling with iced Soda Water. Garnish with fruit or Mint.

REMSSEN COOLER.

1 Glass Dry Gin.
1 Split of Soda.

Peel rind of Lemon in spiral form, place in long tumbler with 1 lump of Ice, add Gin and fill with soda water.

The Juice of $\frac{1}{2}$ Lemon.
 2 Dashes Grenadine.
 $\frac{1}{2}$ Apricot Brandy.
 $\frac{1}{2}$ Dry Gin.
 1 Lump of Ice.
Use long tumbler and fill with soda Water. 2 sprigs of fresh mint on top.

SEA BREEZE COOLER.

$\frac{1}{2}$ Tablespoonful of Sugar.
 The Juice of $\frac{1}{2}$ Lemon.
 1 Glass Dry Gin.
Use long tumbler, and fill with Ginger Beer.

SHADY GROVE COOLER.

RICKEYS.

Most Rickeys are made with the following recipe:—

Use medium size glass.
 1 Lump of Ice.
 The Juice of $\frac{1}{2}$ Lime or $\frac{1}{4}$ Lemon.
 Then add 1 glass of any Spirit or Liqueur fancied — Whisky, Gin, Rum, Bourbon, Calvados, Caperitif, etc.
Fill with Carbonated Water and leave rind of Lime or Lemon in glass.

DAISIES

SAVOY HOTEL RICKEY.

Use medium size glass.

1 Lump of Ice.

The Juice of $\frac{1}{2}$ Lime or $\frac{1}{4}$ Lemon.

1 Glass Gin. 4 Dashes Grenadine.

Fill with Carbonated Water and leave Rind of Lime or Lemon in glass.

DAISIES.

GIN DAISY.

The Juice of $\frac{1}{2}$ Lemon.

$\frac{1}{4}$ Tablespoonful Powdered Sugar.

6 Dashes Grenadine. 1 Glass Gin.

Use long tumbler. Half fill with cracked ice, stir until glass is frosted. Fill with Syphon Soda Water, put 4 sprigs of green mint on top and decorate with slices of fruit in season.

SANTA CRUZ RUM DAISY.

Use small bar glass.

3 or 4 Dashes Gomme Syrup.

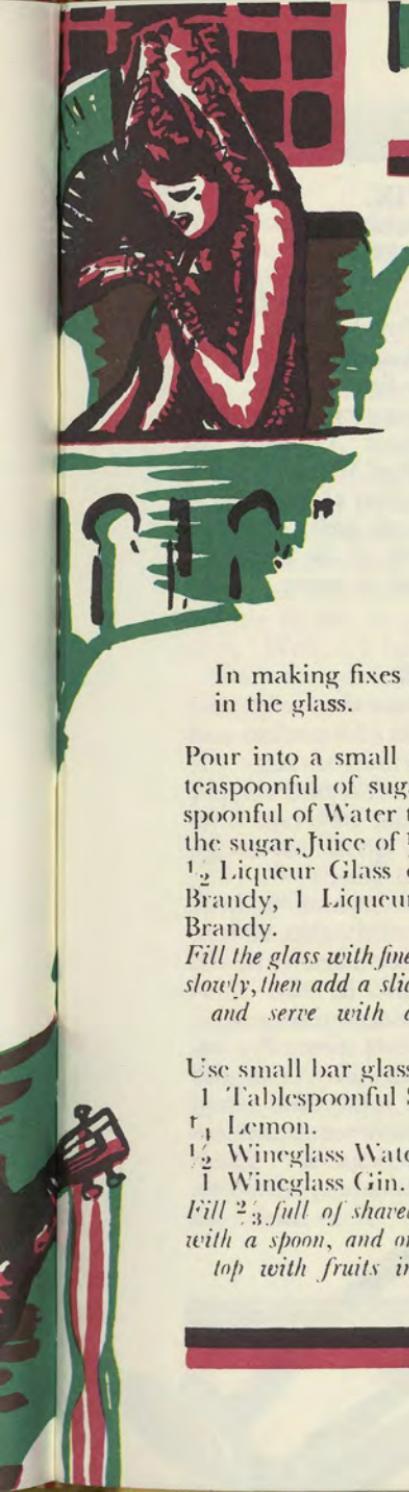

2 or 3 Dashes Maraschino or Curaçao.

The Juice of $\frac{1}{2}$ Small Lemon.

1 Wineglass Rum.

Fill glass $\frac{1}{3}$ full of shaved ice. Shake thoroughly, strain into a large cocktail glass, and fill up with Seltzer or Apollinaris Water.

FIXES

WHISKY DAISY.

Use small bar glass.

3 Dashes Gomme Syrup.

The Juice of $\frac{1}{2}$ Small Lemon.

1 Wineglass Bourbon or Rye Whisky.

Fill glass $\frac{1}{3}$ full of shaved ice. Shake thoroughly, strain into a large cocktail glass, and fill up with Apollinaris or Seltzer Water.

FIXES.

In making fixes be careful to put the lemon skin in the glass.

Pour into a small tumbler 1 teaspoonful of sugar, 1 teaspoonful of Water to dissolve the sugar, Juice of $\frac{1}{2}$ Lemon, $\frac{1}{2}$ Liqueur Glass of Cherry Brandy, 1 Liqueur Glass of Brandy.

Fill the glass with fine ice and stir slowly, then add a slice of lemon, and serve with a straw.

Use small bar glass.

1 Tablespoonful Sugar.

$\frac{1}{4}$ Lemon.

$\frac{1}{2}$ Wineglass Water.

1 Wineglass Gin.

Fill $2\frac{1}{3}$ full of shaved ice. Stir with a spoon, and ornament the top with fruits in season.

BRANDY FIX.

GIN FIX.

JULEPS

SANTA CRUZ FIX.

The Santa Cruz fix is made by substituting Rum for Brandy in the Brandy Fix.

WHISKY FIX.

1 Large Teaspoonful of Powdered White Sugar, dissolved in a little water.

The Juice of $\frac{1}{2}$ Lemon.

1 Wineglass Bourbon or Rye Whisky.

Fill up the glass about $\frac{2}{3}$ full of shaved ice, stir well, and ornament the top of the glass with fruit in season.

JULEPS.

MINT JULEPS.

The Julep is a delightful potion that originally came out of the Southern States of America, and many great men have sung its praises through the years. It was the famous Capt. Marryatt, skipper and novelist, who introduced the beverage into the British Isles, and below we quote his recipe in his own words :—

“ I must descant a little upon the mint julep, as it is, with the thermometer at 100 degrees, one of the most delightful and insinuating potations that ever was invented, and may be drunk with equal satisfaction when the thermometer is as low as 70 degrees. There are many varieties, such as those composed of Claret, Madeira, etc., but the ingredients of the real mint julep are as follows. I learned how to make them, and succeeded pretty well. Put into a tumbler about a dozen springs of the tender shoots of mint, upon them put a spoonful of white sugar, and equal proportions of Peach and common Brandy, so as to fill it up one-third, or perhaps a little less. Then take rasped or pounded ice, and fill up the tumbler. Epicures rub the lips of the tumbler with a piece of fresh pineapple, and the tumbler itself is very often incrusted outside with stalactites of ice. As the ice melts, you drink. I once overheard two ladies talking in the next room to me, and one of them said, 'Well, if I have a weakness for any one thing, it is for a mint julep!'-a very amiable weakness, and proving her good sense and good taste. They are, in fact, like the American ladies, irresistible."

Use long tumbler.

1 Lump Sugar.

2 Sprigs Mint.

Fill glass with Champagne.

Stir gently and decorate with slices of fruit in season.

CHAMPAGNE JULEP.

PINEAPPLE JULEP. (6 people)

Take a large glass jug and fill it $\frac{1}{4}$ full of crushed ice. Pour in the juice of two oranges, a glass of Raspberry Vinegar, a glass of Maraschino, a glass and a half of Gin, and a bottle of Sparkling Moselle or Saumur. Pull a pineapple to pieces with a silver fork and place the pieces in the jug. Stir the mixture, add a little fruit for appearance's sake, and serve.

SOUTHERN MINT JULEP.

- 4 Sprigs Fresh Mint.
 $\frac{1}{2}$ Tablespoonful Powdered Sugar.
1 Glass of Bourbon Rye, or Canadian Whisky.

Use long tumbler and crush the Mint leaves and dissolved sugar lightly together, add Spirits and fill glass with cracked ice ; stir gently until glass is frosted. Decorate on top with 3 Sprigs of Mint.

SMASHES.

The 'Smash' is in effect a Julep on a small plan. To prepare it the following recipe is usually used :—

Use medium sized glass.
Dissolve 1 Lump of Sugar.
Add 4 leaves of Green Mint, and crush Mint and sugar very lightly together.
Place lump of ice in glass.
Then add one small glass of either Brandy, Rum, Gin, Irish Whisky, or Scotch Whisky as fancy dictates.
Decorate with a slice of Orange, and squeeze Lemon peel on top.

COBLERS.

The cobbler is, like the Julep, a drink of American origin, although it is now an established favourite, particularly in warm climes. It is very easy to make, but it is usual to make it acceptable to the eye, as well as the palate, by decorating the glass after the ingredients are mixed. The usual recipe for preparing Cobblers is given below. To make a Whisky Cobbler substitute Whisky for Gin, For a Brandy Cobbler, substitute Brandy, and so on.

Fill glass half full with cracked ice.

Add 1 Teaspoonful of Powdered Sugar.

Add 1 Small Glass of Gin (or Whisky, or Brandy, as above).

Stir well, and decorate with slices of orange or pineapple.

FRAPPÉ.

Fill cocktail glass with shaved ice. Pour in Green or White Creme de Menthe.

CRÈME
DE MENTHE
FRAPPÉ.

PUNCH.

"This ancient Silver bowl of mine, it tells of good old times,
Of joyous days, and jolly nights, and
merry Christmas Chimes,
They were a free and jovial race, but honest,
brave and true,
That dipped their ladle in the punch when this old bowl was new."

Thus runs the old drinking song by Oliver Wendell Holmes, a song among many that have lauded the old time jollity of Ye Punch Bowl.

The proper preparation of Punch requires considerable care, but there is one grand secret in its concoction that must be mastered with patience and care. It is just this, that the various subtle ingredients be thoroughly mixed in such a way, that neither the bitter, the sweet, the spirit, nor any liquor be perceptible the one over the other. This accomplishment depends not so much upon the precise proportions of the various elements, as upon the order of their addition, and the manner of mixing. Below are given a selection of famous old Punch recipes worthy of careful study.

|------------------|---|
| BOMBAY PUNCH. | 1 Qt. Brandy. 1 Qt. Sherry. $\frac{1}{4}$ Pt. Maraschino. $\frac{1}{4}$ Pt. Orange Curaçao. 4 Qts. Champagne. 2 Qts. Carbonated Water. |
|------------------|---|

Stir gently. Surround the Punch Bowl with cracked ice and decorate with fruits in season.

The Juice of 15 Lemons.
The Juice of 4 Oranges.
 $1\frac{1}{4}$ lbs. Powdered Sugar.
 $\frac{1}{2}$ Pt. Curaçao.
1 Glass Grenadine.
2 Qts. Brandy.

Place large block of ice in a punch bowl, add the above ingredients and from one to two quarts of sparkling water.

BRANDY PUNCH.

$1\frac{1}{2}$ lbs. Sugar.
2 Qts. Sparkling Water.
2 Qts. Claret.
1 Pt. Brandy.
1 Pt. Rum.
1 Pt. Sparkling White Wine.
1 Glass Italian Vermouth.
Use punch bowl with a large block of ice.

CARDINAL PUNCH.

$\frac{1}{2}$ lb. Powdered Sugar.
2 Qts. Champagne.
1 Qt. Mineral Water
(Sparkling).
1 Glass Brandy.
1 Glass Maraschino.
1 Glass Curaçao.

Mix well in punch bowl. Surround bowl with cracked ice and add slices of fruit in season.

CHAMPAGNE PUNCH.

PUNCHES

CLARET PUNCH.

$\frac{1}{2}$ lb. Powdered Sugar.
3 Qts. Claret.
2 Qts. Sparkling Water.
 $\frac{1}{2}$ Pt. Lemon Juice.
1 Glass Curaçao.

Mix well in punch bowl. Surround bowl with cracked ice. Add slices of fruits in season.

FISH HOUSE PUNCH.

The Juice of 6 Lemons.
 $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. Powdered Sugar.
 $\frac{1}{2}$ Pt. Brandy.
 $\frac{1}{4}$ Pt. Peach Brandy.
 $\frac{1}{4}$ Pt. Rum.
3 Pts. Sparkling Water.
Use large punch bowl with block of ice.

GLASGOW PUNCH.

From a recipe in the possession of Dr. Shelton Mackenzie.

Melt lump sugar in cold water, with the juice of a couple of lemons, passed through a fine hair-strainer. This is the sherbet, and must be well mingled. Then add old Jamaica Rum—one part of Rum to five of sherbet. Cut a couple of limes in two, and run each section rapidly around the edge of the jug or bowl, gently squeezing in some of the delicate acid. This done, the Punch is made. Imbibe freely.

乘

MILK
PUNCH.
(No. 1.)

- The Juice of 4 Lemons.
The Rind of 2 Lemons.
 $\frac{1}{2}$ Pound of White Sugar, dissolved in just sufficient hot water.
1 Pineapple, peeled, sliced and pounded.
6 Cloves.
20 Coriander Seeds.
1 Small Stick Cinnamon.
1 Pint Brandy.
1 Pint Rum.
1 Gill Arrack.
1 Cup Strong Green Tea.
1 Quart Boiling Water.
1 Quart Hot Milk.

Put all the materials in a clean demijohn, the boiling water to be added last; cork this down to prevent evaporation, and allow the ingredients to steep for at least six hours; then add the hot milk and the juice of two more lemons; mix and filter through a jelly-bag; and when the punch has passed bright, put it away in tightly corked bottles.

This punch is intended to be iced for drinking.
If intended for immediate use, filtering is not necessary.

PUNCHES

MILK PUNCH (No. 2.)

1 Glass Milk.
 $\frac{1}{2}$ Tablespoonful Powdered Sugar.
1 Glass Whisky or Rum.
Shake well and strain into long tumbler, grating a little nutmeg on top.

NUREMBERG PUNCH.

(For a party of 15.)

Take $\frac{3}{4}$ of a pound of loaf sugar ; squeeze upon it, through muslin, the juice of two or more good-sized oranges ; add a little of the peel, cut very thin, pour upon a quart of boiling water, the third part of that quantity of Arrack, and a bottle of hot, but not boiling, Red or White French Wine-Red is best. Stir together. This is excellent when cold, and will improve with age.

OXFORD PUNCH.

Rub the rinds of three fresh lemons with loaf sugar, till you have extracted a portion of the juice ; finely cut the peel off two more lemons, and two sweet oranges. Add six glasses of calf's foot jelly ; let all be put into a large jug, and stir well together. Pour in two quarts of water boiling hot, and set the jug upon the hob for twenty minutes. Strain the liquor through a fine sieve into a large bowl ; put in a bottle of Capillaire, half a pint of Sherry, a pint of Cognac Brandy, a pint of old Jamaica Rum, and a quart of Orange Shrub ; stir well as you pour in the Spirit. If you find it requires more sweetness, add sugar to your taste.

As the pulp is disagreeable to some persons, the sherbet may be strained before the liquor is put in. Some strain the lemon before they put it to the sugar, which is improper, as, when the pulp and sugar are well mixed together, it adds much to the richness of the Punch.

When only Rum is used, about half a pint of Porter will soften the Punch ; and even when both Rum and Brandy are used, the Porter gives a richness, and to some a very pleasant flavour.

Using a tall glass with cracked ice as desired, pour in 1 part Lime Juice, 2 parts Sugar Syrup, 3 parts Jamaica Rum, 4 parts Water. This may be served with a Maraschino Cherry and a slice of Orange. The ice and water should be figured together as the 4 parts.

PLANTER'S PUNCH.

1 Qt. Champagne.
1 Qt. Rum.
 $\frac{1}{2}$ Liqueur Glass Orange Bitters.
The Juice of 10 Lemons.
The Juice of 3 Oranges.
2 lbs. Sugar.
The Whites of 10 Eggs.

ROMAN PUNCH.

Use punch bowl. Dissolve Sugar in lemon and orange juice, add the rind of one orange, add the well beaten whites of eggs. Surround the bowl with cracked ice and stir the ingredients well together.

$\frac{1}{2}$ lb. Powdered Sugar.
2 Qts. Sauterne.
1 Liqueur Glass Maraschino.
1 Liqueur Glass Curaçao.
1 Liqueur Glass Grand Marnier.

SAUTERNE PUNCH.

Use punch bowl, 1 block of ice and add slices of fruit in season.

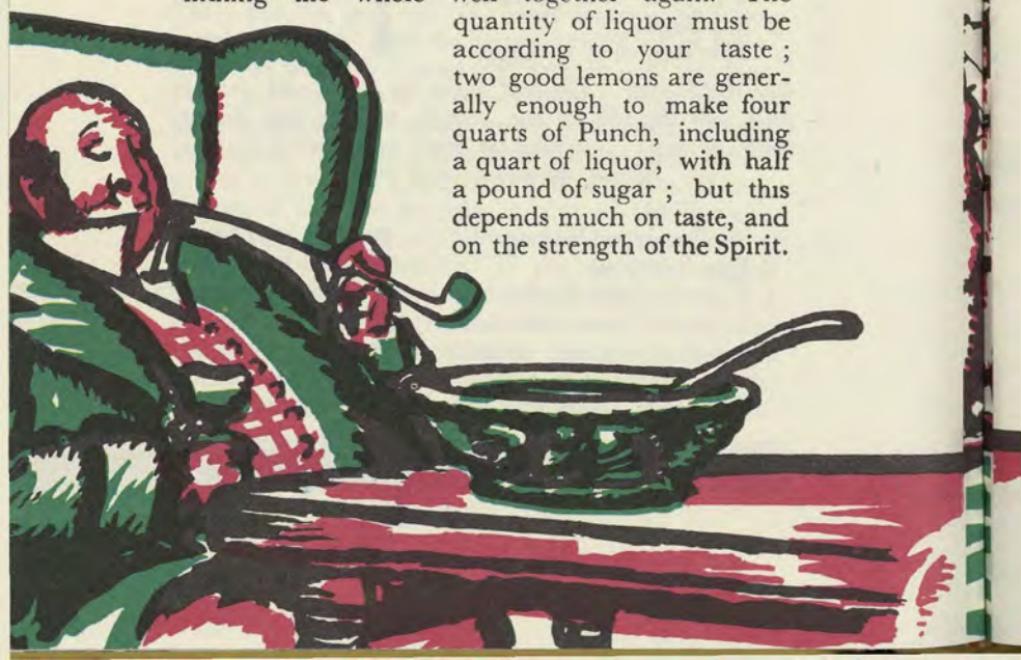

PUNCHES

UNCLE TOBY PUNCH.

ENGLISH.

(General Ford's Recipe.)

Take two large fresh lemons with rough skins, quite ripe, and some large lumps of double-refined sugar. Rub the sugar over the lemons till it has absorbed all the yellow part of the skins. Then put into the bowl these lumps, and as much more as the juice of the lemons may be supposed to require ; for no certain weight can be mentioned as the acidity of a lemon cannot be known till tried, and therefore this must be determined by the taste. Then squeeze the lemon juice upon the sugar, and with a bruiser press the sugar and the juice particularly well together, for a great deal of the richness and fine flavour of the Punch depends on this rubbing and mixing process being thoroughly performed. Then mix this up very well with boiling water (soft water is best) till the whole is rather cool. When this mixture (which is now called the sherbet) is to your taste, take Brandy and Rum in equal quantities, and put them to it, mixing the whole well together again. The quantity of liquor must be according to your taste ; two good lemons are generally enough to make four quarts of Punch, including a quart of liquor, with half a pound of sugar ; but this depends much on taste, and on the strength of the Spirit.

PREPARED PUNCH FOR BOTTLING.

The advantages of having real Punch bottled, and therefore ready to hand at any time, will be immediately appreciated. To accomplish this, it is necessary to prepare the nectar in the form of a concentrated essence, the addition of hot or cold water being the only necessary step to produce a delectable Punch. Below will be found recipes to this end.

1½ Gallons Arrack.
3 Gallons Spirits.
3 Gallons Plain Syrup.
½ Pint Tincture of Lemon
Peel.

Mix all together, and it is ready for immediate use.

ESSENCE OF ARRACK PUNCH.

5 Gallons Strong Brandy.
3 Gallons Plain Syrup.
½ Pint Tincture of Lemon
Peel.
½ Pint Tincture of Orange
Peel.
3 Ounces Tincture of Allspice.
½ Wineglass Tincture of Cloves.

Mix the tinctures with the Brandy, and add the syrup.

ESSENCE OF BRANDY PUNCH.

ESSENCE OF CLARET PUNCH.

5 Gallons Claret.
 $2\frac{1}{2}$ Gallons Spirits.
3 Gallons Plain Syrup.
1 Pint Tincture of Lemon
Peel.
 $\frac{1}{2}$ Pint Raspberry Juice.
1 Ounce Tartaric Acid.
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ Ounces Tincture of Cloves.
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ Ounces Tincture of Cinnamon.

*First dissolve the Tartaric Acid in a small portion of the Spirits.
Mix the tinctures with the remainder of the Spirits. Pour the two mixtures together, and add the remaining ingredients.*

GIN PUNCH FOR BOTTLING.

Following General Ford's plans, as already described, for making sherbet, add good Gin, in the proper proportions before prescribed ; this, bottled and kept in a cool cellar or cistern, will be found an economical and excellent summer drink.

CUPS.

Use small Glass Jug.

- 1 Liqueur Glass Maraschino.
- 1 Liqueur Glass Curaçao.
- 1 Liqueur Glass Brandy.
- 1 Quart Cider.
- 4 Lumps of Ice.

Add 1 Split of Soda Water.

Stir gently and decorate with slices of fruit in season.

CIDER CUP

(No. 1.)
(4 persons).

Use Large Glass Jug.

- 1 Liqueur Glass Calvados.
- 1 Liqueur Glass Brandy.
- 1 Liqueur Glass Orange Curaçao.

3 Lumps of Ice.

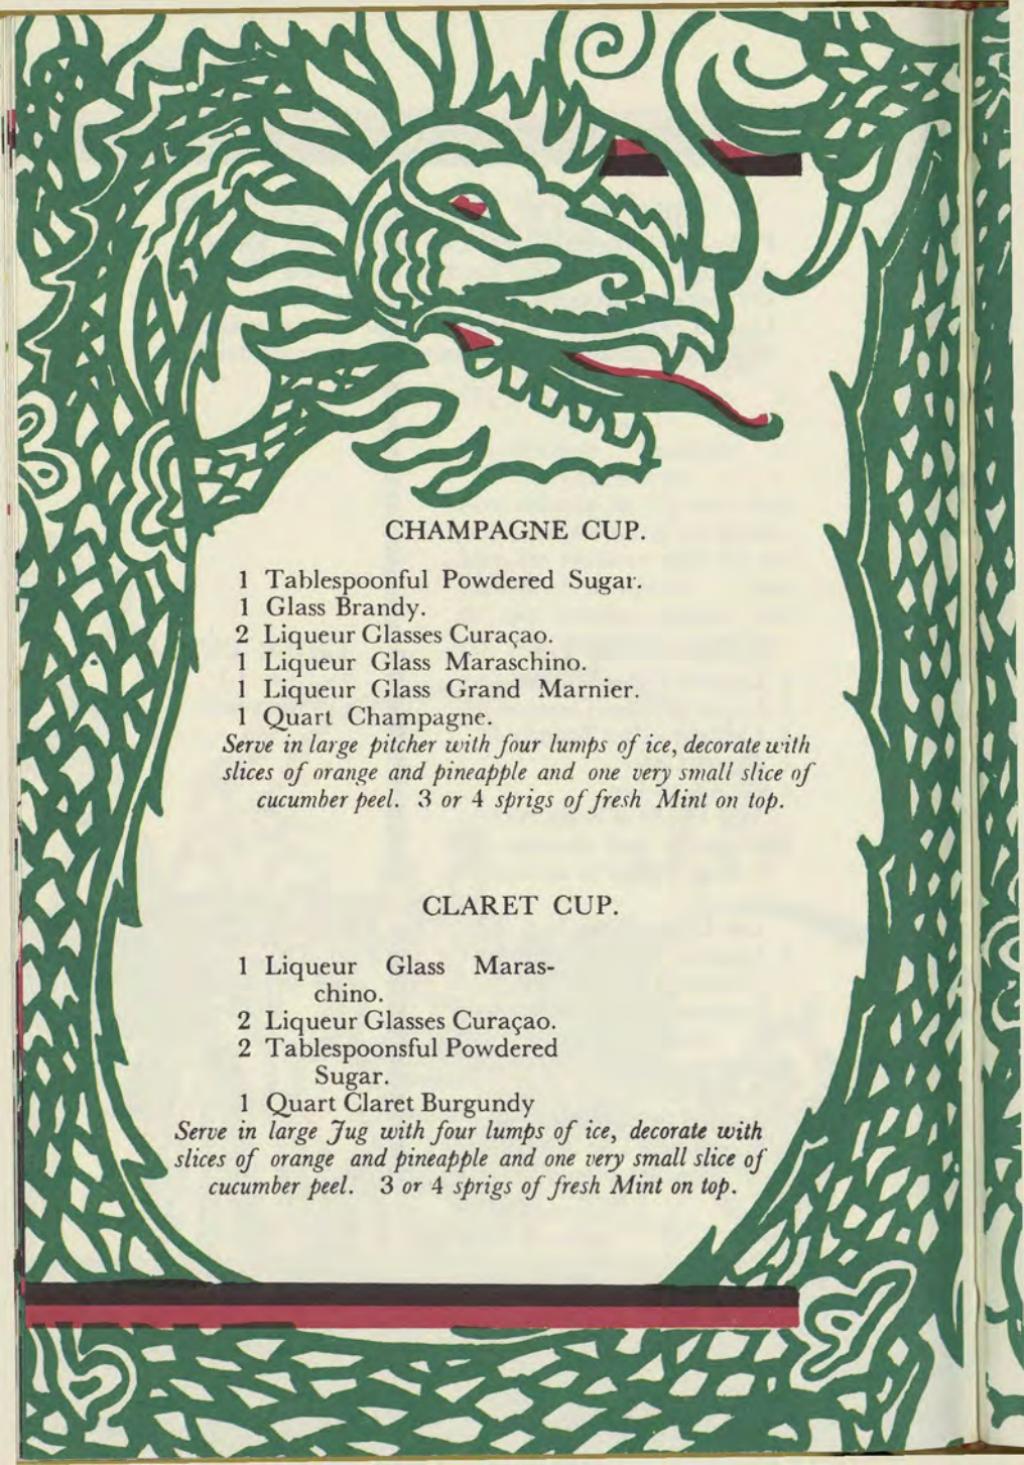

1 Bottle Cider.

1 Split of Soda Water.

Decorate with slice of fruit, and add 2 sprigs of mint on top.

CIDER CUP

(No. 2.)
(4 persons).

CHAMPAGNE CUP.

- 1 Tablespoonful Powdered Sugar.
- 1 Glass Brandy.
- 2 Liqueur Glasses Curaçao.
- 1 Liqueur Glass Maraschino.
- 1 Liqueur Glass Grand Marnier.
- 1 Quart Champagne.

Serve in large pitcher with four lumps of ice, decorate with slices of orange and pineapple and one very small slice of cucumber peel. 3 or 4 sprigs of fresh Mint on top.

CLARET CUP.

- 1 Liqueur Glass Maraschino.
- 2 Liqueur Glasses Curaçao.
- 2 Tablespoonsful Powdered Sugar.
- 1 Quart Claret Burgundy

Serve in large Jug with four lumps of ice, decorate with slices of orange and pineapple and one very small slice of cucumber peel. 3 or 4 sprigs of fresh Mint on top.

PEACH CUP

Carefully peel one or two fine ripe peaches, and cut up with a silver knife into small pieces, losing as little juice as possible, then place into suitable Cup Vessel (glass bowl or soup tureen).

Pour one bottle of light Still Moselle over the fruit and add 2 or 3 tablespoonsful of castor sugar, stir the mixture gently and cover over carefully, leaving it to draw for 20—30 minutes when another bottle of Still Moselle, previously iced, should be added.

At the moment of serving a bottle of Sparkling Moselle should be added to the Cup, which should then be tasted and, if necessary, further sugar added. Serve in suitable glasses, when it is advisable to keep the fruit back in the bowl.

The Cup should be carefully iced, but on no account should ice be put into the Cup.

RHINE WINE CUP.

2 Liqueur Glasses Maraschino.

1 Liqueur Glass Curaçao.

$\frac{1}{2}$ Tablespoonful Sugar.

1 Quart Rhine Wine.

Serve in large Jug with four lumps of ice. Decorate with slices of orange and pineapple and one very small slice of cucumber peel. 3 or 4 sprigs of fresh Mint on top.

SAUTERNE CUP.

The same as for Rhine Wine Cup, substituting Sauterne for the Rhine Wine.

THE LUCKY HOUR OF GREAT WINES.

By "COLETTE."

I was very well brought up. As convincing proof of such a categorical assertion, let me say that when I was barely three years of age my father, who believed in gentle and progressive methods, gave me a full liqueur glass of a reddish-brown wine sent to him from his native Southern France ; the Muscat Wine of Frontignan.

It was like a sun-stroke, or love at first sight, or the sudden realization of a nervous system ; this consecration rendered me a worthy disciple of Wine for ever afterwards. A little later, I learnt to quaff my glass of mulled wine, aromatic with cinnamon and lemon, to a dinner of boiled chestnuts. At the age when one can barely read I was spelling out, drop by drop, red Burgundies, old and light, and dazzling Yquems. Champagne passed in its turn, a murmur of foam, leaping pearls of air, across birthday dinners and first communion festivities : with it came grey Puisaye truffles. . . . A fine lesson from which I acquired familiar and discreet knowledge of wine, not swallowed greedily, but measured out into narrow glasses, absorbed in mouthfuls with long spaces in between, and carefully reflected upon.

It was between my eleventh and my fifteenth years that this beautiful educational programme was completed. My mother feared that, as I grew older, I should become anæmic. One by one, she unearthed from their dry sand some bottles which were ageing beneath our house in a cellar—it is, thank Heavens ! still intact—carved out of the granite itself. Whenever I think about it, I envy the little brat who was so privileged. To accompany my modest provisions on my return to school—a cutlet, the drumstick of a chicken, or one of those hard cheeses that are matured beneath wood-cinders and which one breaks into splinters with a blow from one's fist like a pane of glass—I had Château-Larose, Château-Lafite, Chambertin and Corton which had escaped the Prussians in 1870. Certain of the wines had perished, and were pale and smelt faintly of dead roses ; they rested in a bed of tannin which dyed the bottles deeply ; but most of them kept their fine fire, strength and vigour. What delightful times those were ! I drained the cream of the paternal cellar, glass by glass, delicately My mother recorked the opened bottles and contemplated the glory of the French vintages on my colouring cheeks.

How lucky are the children who do not distend their stomachs with great draughts of artificially reddened wine at meals ! How well advised are the parents who dole out to their offspring an inch of pure wine—meaning “pure” in the highest sense of the word—and teach them that : “When it is not meal-time, you have the pump, the tap, the springs and filters. Water is for thirst. Wine is, according to its quality and its flavour, a necessary tonic, a luxury or a tribute paid to food.”

Is it not also nourishment ? What lovely times those were when the natives of my village in Lower Burgundy would gather around a bottle clad in dust and silky cobwebs and kiss their fingers in the air to it, exclaiming—even before tasting it—“Nectar !” Do you not admit, then, that in telling you about wine here I am speaking about what I know ? It is not a little thing to have learnt contempt, at an early age, both for those who drink no wine and those who drink too much.

The Vineyard and Wine are great mysteries. Alone in the vegetable kingdom, the vine gives us a true understanding of the savour of the earth. And how faithfully it is translated ! It partakes of, and reveals, all the secrets of the soil. Through it we realise that even flint can be living, yielding, nourishing. Even the unemotional chalk weeps, in wine, golden tears. If you transplant a vine to a distant country, it struggles to retain its personality and sometimes triumphs over powerful mineral chemicals. Gathered near Algiers, the white wines remember perfectly, for many years, the noble Bordeaux scion which sweetened them just sufficiently, softened them and gave them gaiety. It is Madeira that colours and warms the heavy dry wine which ripens at Château-Chalon, on the ridge of a narrow rocky plateau.

From the grapes flourishing on the twisted vine-plant, heavy, of a transparent dull agate colour, or blue and powdered with silver, the eye falls to the bare wood, like a wooden snake, wedged in between two boulders ; with what, then, does this southern land feed itself, where there is no rain and which is only kept together by a network of roots ? The dews of the night and the sunshine of the day are enough for it—the fire of a star, the life-sweat of another star—marvels.

What single cloudless day, what soft late rainfall decide that a vintage shall be great among the others ?

Human care can do almost nothing towards it ; it is all celestial wizardry, the orbits of planets, sunspots.

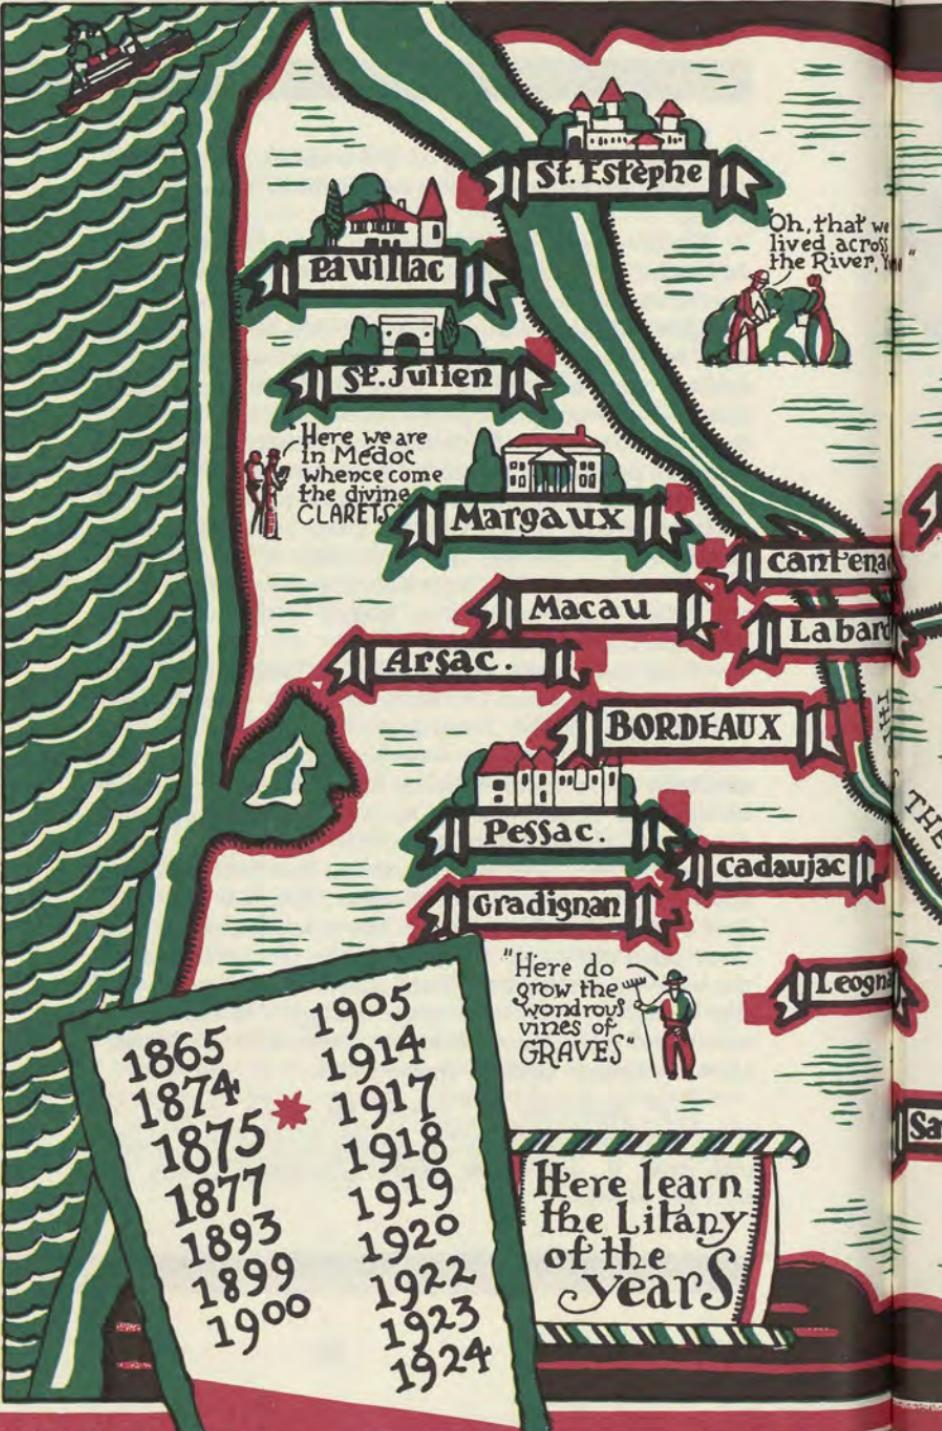

Follow with your finger, my fair readers, on the map, beneath the eye of Nectar, the honours-list of the "years." Learn your vintage chronology and the litanies of Saints Estèphe, Julien, Emilion . . . Fashion would have it so. If—still in the name of Fashion—you do not eat enough, at any rate you have lately learnt how to drink. You lack discernment and preference, and in this these charts will help you. It is sweet, merely by uttering the names of our provinces and our towns, to sing the praises of the venerated vineyards. It is profitable both to the mind and to the body—believe me—to taste wine in its home, in the country which gave it all it possesses. What surprises has not a carefully thought out pilgrimage in store for you ! Young wine, tried in the dim light of the wine-cellar—virgin Angevin wine, uncorked beneath a dusty bower beside a high road on a stormy summer afternoon—or exciting odds and ends discovered in an old cellar which either does not know its wealth or has forgotten it . . . From such a cellar, in Franche-Comté, I once fled as though I had robbed a museum . . . Some crazy furniture, sold by auction in a little village square, included, between the dressing table, an iron bedstead and some empty bottles, six full bottles ; it was there that I made, whilst yet a young girl, the acquaintance of a Prince, fiery, imperious and treacherous as are all great seducers : Jurançon. These six bottles made me more interested in their country of origin than any professor could have done. I admit that at such a price geography lessons are not at everyone's beck and call. And we drank this glorious wine, one day, in the low-ceilinged parlour of an inn, so dark that we never even knew the colour of the wine. Its memory is like that which a lady traveller retains of a nocturnal adventure, of the Unknown whose face she does not see, and who reveals himself only in his kisses.

Gastronomic snobbishness has given rise to a collection of Inns, such as never used to be seen. It reverences Wine. Will wisdom be reborn of an ill-enlightened faith, confessed by mouths armour-plated by a hundred cocktails, poisonous aperitifs, withering spirits? Let us hope so. With the dawn of old age I can offer, for my small part, the example of a stomach that has no remorse or damage, a friendly liver and a sensitive palate, preserved by honest wine. Fill then, Nectar, this glass which I hold out to you. A fine and simple wine as you yourself love it, you who know, giving a light bubble in which play the ruddy fires of a great Burgundian ancestor, the topaz of Yquem, the balas ruby, sometimes tinged with mauve, of violet-perfumed Bordeaux. . . .

And may your slim chef of a bronzed cellarer understand me when I clink your dainty glass against a thick-sided goblet; you know well—there comes a time in life when one worships youth—that on a southern shore there is being kept for me a chapelet of wickered demi-johns. One vintage fills them, the next finds them empty and fills them in its turn. Do not disdain, you who lay down fine bottles, these short-lived wines; they are clear, dry, varied, they flow evenly from the throat to the paunch and do not tarry on their way. So long as the temperament of the wine be warm, we do not care, down there, if the day be sultry, but drink great draughts of that wine which refreshes us and leaves behind it a double taste of muscat and of cedar-wood.

GILBERT
• RUMFOLD

THE WINES OF BORDEAUX

At the head of a glorious list of the still wines of France undoubtedly must stand the beatific Growths that come out of the 'departement' of the Gironde, where the old city of Bordeaux wields her sceptre. Thence come the magnificent 'Classed Growths' of the Médoc Clarets, beloved of the connoisseur, the Vins de Graves, red and white, the Sauternes, the St. Emilians, and the especial Pomerols. We will deal with each of these in turn, that you may know something of their individual characteristics, and of their classifications.

THE CLASSED CLARETS.

Among the great wines produced throughout the world, with the possible exception of Champagnes, the 'Classed Growths' of the Médoc Claret stand alone, particularly those bearing upon their labels the 'hall mark'—“Mis en bouteilles au Château,” or, as we say, Château-Bottled.

Before, therefore, proceeding with the actual description of the various 'Growths,' it will be as well to pause here to enquire into the exact meaning of this highly important phrase, so that we may see just why such labelling is held in respect by the Claret connoisseur.

We must go back to a very important landmark in the history of the great Claretts, to the year 1846, when the practice of 'Château Bottling' was first inaugurated. Until that year, the famous Châteaux of the Gironde disposed of their vintage to the big dealers in bulk, and the bottling of the wine was, in consequence, entirely in the hands of the trade. In that year, however, the celebrated Château Lafite obtained the very special privilege of bottling the vintage, or at least part of it, actually upon the estate. It will be seen at once that in this way the wine was definitely authenticated, and the 'mark' became, in consequence, highly prized. During the years that followed, other Châteaux adopted the practice, until to-day quite a number of the 'elect' are permitted to carry on the privileged practice of 'Château Bottling.' These, then, are the wines so highly esteemed, that stand above all others of the Gironde, the very names of which come smoothly and lusciously off the tongue of the connoisseur.

These sixty-two red wines of the Haut-Médoc, the great Clarets, are classed into Five 'Growth's' or Sections—"First Growth's," "Second Growth's," etc., a classification which has been in use since 1855, when it was drawn up by a committee of experts. This classification may be accepted as representing the 'bigness' and power of the wines in a descending scale of alcoholic content. It does not follow that a Fourth and Fifth Growth is inferior in quality to wines in higher classes, as no more delicate refined wines exist than many of the Fourth and Fifth Growth's.

With the exception of Château Haut-Brion, nearly all the famous red wines of France are grown in the Haut-Médoc.

There are five supremely important communes in the Médoc—Pauillac, Cantenac, Margaux, Saint-Julien and Saint-Estèphe—famous in all Christian countries. There are five less important ones, Saint-Laurent, Labarde, Ludon, Arsac and Macau. These ten communes contain all the sixty-two Crûs Classés.

OUTSTANDING VINTAGES OF CLARET AND THEIR CHIEF CHARACTERISTICS ARE:

- 1865. A wonderful vintage.
- 1870. Big. Hard for many years, but now sought for by connoisseurs.
- 1874. Good.
- 1875. Probably the best vintage ever made in the Haut-Médoc ; the wines are now becoming a little worn, but are still most interesting. A few are still to be found in certain wine lists.
- 1877. Good.
- 1893. Excellent.
- 1899. A wonderful vintage. The best since 1875. Full, round, splendid bouquet, with all the highest qualities of the wines of the Haut-Médoc.
- 1900. Excellent wines : sweeter than, but not so much body as, 1899's. A wonderful vintage.
- 1905. Good wines, sweet and fine bouquet.
- 1914. Good, sound wines, possessing fine colour, good body and roundness of flavour. A very good vintage resembling the celebrated vintage of 1900.
- 1917. This is a good vintage. The wines possess smoothness, delicacy and breeding. Their chief characteristic is their agreeableness. They are reasonable in price.
- 1918. A good vintage that has much improved, clean, with good body and softness of texture.
- 1919. Very good, healthy, and attractive, good body.
- 1920. Has developed well, good breed, élégance, finesse and splendid body. It has lost its original hardness.
- 1922. A plentiful and fairly good year.
- 1923. A good year.
- 1924. An excellent vintage, some of the higher classed wines likely to become very fine.

HERE ARE THE "GIANTS" AMONG THE MEDOC CLARETS

THE FOUR FIRST CLASSED GROWTHS.

CHÂTEAU LAFITE.

Of exquisite bouquet and rich full flavour. The first 'Château Bottled' Lafite goes back to the year 1846.

CHÂTEAU MARGAUX.

The most delicate of these fair wines with a unique and individual flavour, sometimes compared with the faint perfume of cedar wood. A beautiful, smooth wine that strikes softly on the palate. The true Château Margaux must not be confused with the many other wines, some of them of high classification, which are produced in the Commune of Margaux. The finest vintages are to be found among the years 1899, 1900, 1904, 1911, 1914, 1917, 1918 and 1920. Château Margaux was first Château Bottled in 1847.

CHÂTEAU LATOUR.

A magnificent wine of wonderful fragrance and particularly noted for its peculiarly delicate body. This is a very safe wine to lay down, for its body develops in bottle, and lasts for many years. The golden years of Château Latour are as follows:—1858, 1862, 1864, 1865, 1868, 1869, 1870, 1875, 1877, 1878, and in more recent times 1920 is outstanding.

CHÂTEAU HAUT-BRION.

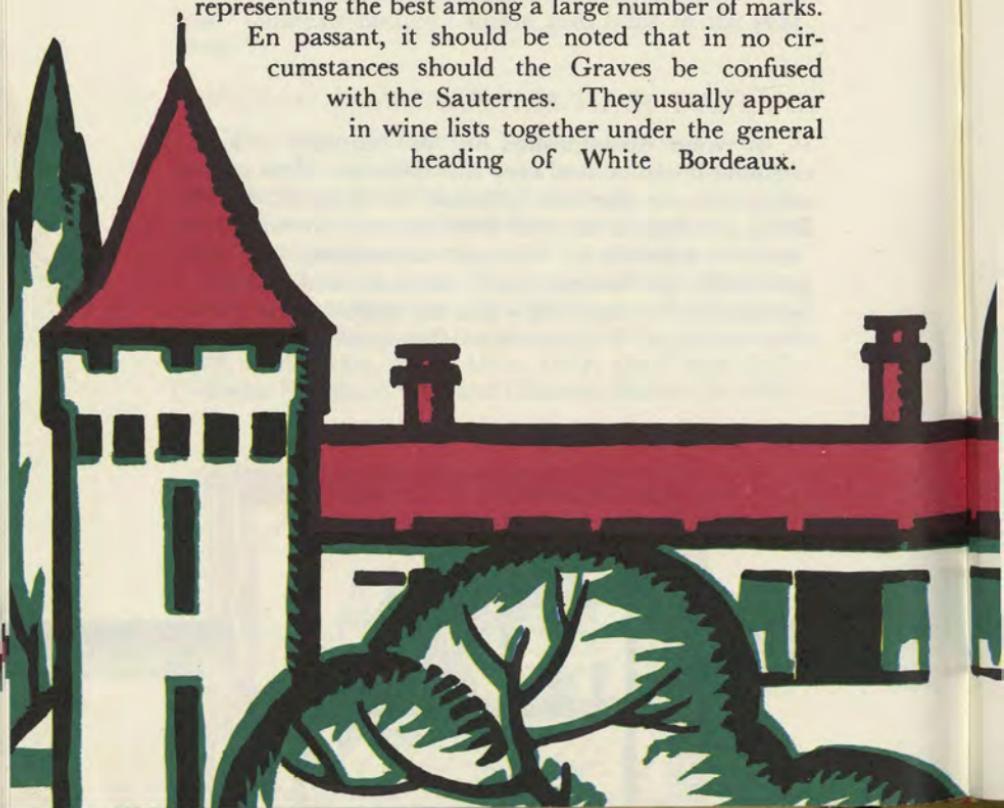

A wine distinguished by its beautiful colour, exquisite bouquet, and very fine flavour. It is interesting to note that all Château bottlings at Haut-Brion, previous to the year 1900, were delivered to the 'trade' unlabelled. Vintages subsequent to this date bear the Château mark on corks and capsules, but the label shown below did not appear until 1904, since which all bottles are so distinguished.

THE RED GRAVES.

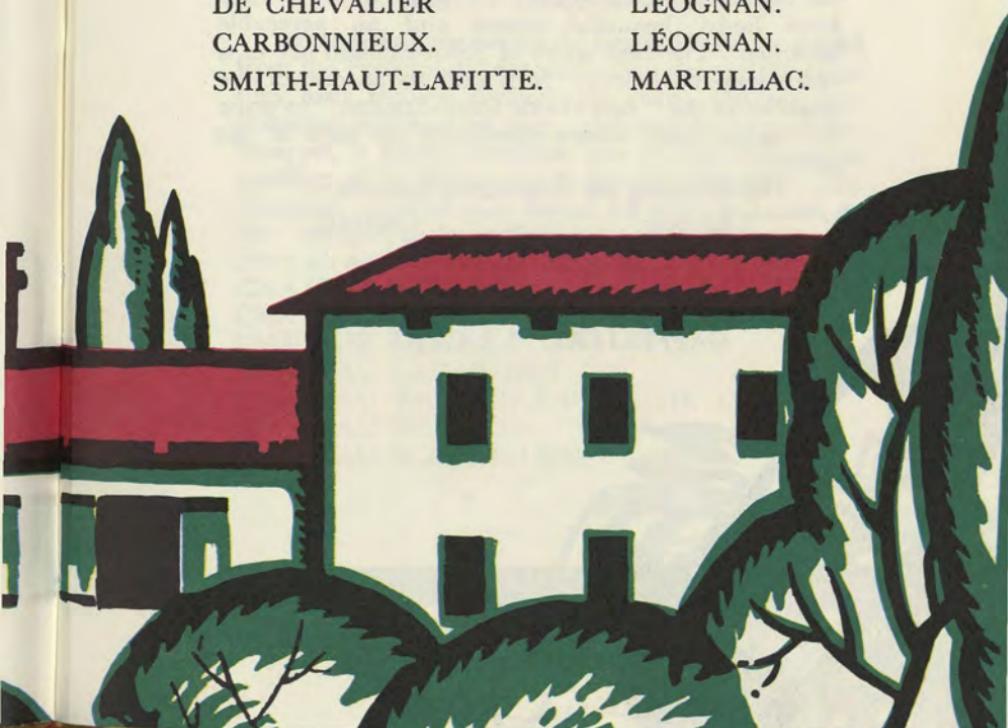

The vineyard district to the South of Bordeaux, that is known as Graves, produces a vast quantity of really excellent wine, both red and white, the former being predominant, at least in quantity. In order, therefore, to prevent confusion in our purpose, it must be explained that the White Graves are usually 'classed' (in a similar way to the Médoc Claret) among the Classification of the White Wines, and will therefore be dealt with under that heading. For the moment we are only concerned with the Red Graves, and here is appended a list of selected growths, representing the best among a large number of marks.

En passant, it should be noted that in no circumstances should the Graves be confused with the Sauternes. They usually appear in wine lists together under the general heading of White Bordeaux.

BORDEAUX

The Commune of Saint-Emilion is famed the whole world over for the production of the luscious red wines bearing its name. Since the year 1889 estate-bottling has become almost universal among the Premiers Crus of Saint-Emilion, with a splendid increase in public confidence and demand as a direct result. Château Ausone, for example, is a worthy competitor of the four first growths of the Médoc, and frequently fetches a higher price than they do, ranking as "Premier des Grands Crûs de Saint-Emilion."

The Clarets of Saint-Emilion are of a distinctive type. They are quite different from the wines of the Médoc and Graves districts, and they are also entirely different from the wines of Burgundy, with which they are sometimes mistakenly compared. They are the highest expression of the "vins de côtes." They have body, beautiful colour and an agreeable bouquet. The best wines of Saint-Emilion are of a rich, dark-red colour. It is said to be one of the qualities of the "bon vin de Saint-Emilion" to untie the tongue and loosen speech—le vin parle et fait parler.

OF POMEROL.

Among the great wines the beautiful red produced from the Pomerol district more than deserve the fame they have enjoyed through the years. All the best Pomerols possess good body, and a truly magnificent bouquet, a happy ensemble due to the exceptional qualities of the soil on which the vines flourish. The Pomerols are especially famed for what is known as the 'bouquet de la truffe.'

THE CLASSED WHITE WINES.

From the districts of SAUTERNES and BARSAC come the finest white wines produced in the Gironde. As with the famous Médoc Clarets, they are classed into numbered "Growth," and the practice of Château Bottling is carried on in the same way among the very best marks.

A great quantity of excellent white wine is obtained from the Graves vineyards, but the output of red wine from that district is considerably greater.

The Sauternes district, on the contrary, is famous solely on account of its wonderful luscious white wines.

Unlike the Médoc wines, which come from eleven different communes, the great white wines come from five communes only, namely :—SAUTERNES, BARSAC, BOMMES, PREIGNAC and FARGUES. Although the soil in these districts is peculiarly suitable to the best production of white wines, it is interesting to note that another factor enters into the wine-making here. For the best wines, the white grapes of Sauternes are used from at least two and sometimes three different species of vines, and the grapes are not considered sufficiently ripe to be gathered until they appear wrinkled and over-ripe. The grape must have a thin layer of “mustiness,” called pourriture, before it is picked. This undoubtedly has much to do with the eventual fine flavour of the wines.

Here is a list of the finest Growths :—

CHAMPAGNE

“ King Charles ! King Charles ! ”

Singularly fitting would it seem that the ‘Merrie Monarch’ should be the figure responsible for the introduction of the sparkling, light, elegant, and expensive Wine of Champagne into England. Surrounded by a Court, the richness and elegance of which was famed throughout Europe, he searched for a ‘Wine of Fashion’ that should express to a nicety the regal luxury, the gaiety, and the sparkling wit of his time. He found it all in Champagne.*

* To Lord Chesterfield, who always imported his own wine from France, is attributed this toast, which might well have been welcome in that Court :

“ Give me Champaign, and fill it to the brim,
I’ll toast in bumpers ev’ry lovely Limb ! ”

From which it must not be assumed that the history of Châmpagne began in that austere epoch. Indeed, its glorious history goes right back to at least the First Century A.D., when it is recorded that the great Roman Empire, jealous of the 'good Gallic wines,' decreed that the famous vines of Rheims be dug up, and replaced with corn. Just two hundred years later, the Roman soldiers themselves replanted the vineyards, since when they thrived and prospered exceedingly until the coming of the year 1914, when the shells of the enemy and the trenches of the Allies turned the precious vineyards once more into a desolate waste. The Great War, combined with the coincident pestilence of a tiny insect called Phylloxera, caused the greatest crisis ever experienced in the Champagne industry. Unfortunately, the comparatively small area from which the whole of the world's Champagne is produced became, by a vicious twist of Fortune's Wheel, a strategic point in the great battleground, and many a famous vineyard was seared by the ugly scar of a trench. The task of re-planting the vines was therefore a colossal one which had to be faced by the great growers at the close of hostilities. That they have succeeded, that once more the regal and time-honoured names are taking their proper places at the head of post-war vintages, is a tremendous tribute to the tenacity and purposefulness of the French character. To understand this fully, it should be explained that the very special quality of Champagne is in considerable measure due to a judicious blending of the produce of several particular vines, vines which require an incredible amount of care and attention in actual growth, as well as considerable time for their proper fruition.

CHAMPAGNE

It was the Master-Cellarer of the Abbey of Hautvillers, Dom Pérignon by name, who first introduced, in the XVIIth Century, this practice of combining the grapes of various vineyards, and a peculiar method of producing the luscious froth and at the same time clarifying the wine, in the actual bottle. Last, but by no means least, he introduced the use of the cork stopper for bottling wines. His methods, with certain improvements, have been in use ever since.

If, now, we would learn something of Champagne, it is first necessary to realise that although true Champagne is only permitted to be produced within a certain strict confine in the district surrounding Rheims, it does not follow that all the vineyards within that province are producers of Champagne. Champagne is a wine of such exacting properties that only a limited number of vineyards in the area are considered to possess the necessary soil, geographical position, exposure to sunlight, etc., to bear grapes of the very particular quality required for perfect blending. The great reputation of Champagne rests to a large extent upon this factor, and in consequence the strictest laws are in force to cover it.

Before we can learn to judge Champagne properly, it is essential to know how it is made, a process, in its main principles, not at all difficult to understand. It has already been explained how the grapes from various vineyards are brought together for careful blending. That is the first stage, at vintage time, usually towards the end of September.

Each batch of fresh grapes is pressed in special large-surface presses, peculiar to the Champagne district, and particular care is taken to prevent the red colouring matter of the skin from 'staining' the wine. Only the first pressings are used to make the best wine. The mass of crushed grapes remaining on the pan of the press (and from which the first juice has been extracted) are then re-pressed, and a juice known as 'deuxièmes tailles' is obtained. It is from the 'deuxièmes tailles' that the cheap Champagnes are produced.

The first juice is known as 'must' and this is run into huge vats, where it remains and settles for at least two days. It is then barrelled, clear and free from rough sediment. Now commences the natural fermentation of the 'must,' the sugar contained in it being converted into alcohol and carbonic acid gas, and a further sediment, called 'lees' begins to settle. By December, the low temperature normally stops the fermentation, and it is here that an early cold snap, or a late winter, are extremes that must have considerable effect upon the quality of the eventual wine. As a matter of fact, the statement "eventual" wine is perhaps not too accurate, as there are quite a few people who consider Champagne very palatable at this particular stage. When one speaks of "Natural" Champagne, one refers to the wine at this period of its preparation. This "Natural" Champagne must eventually possess a sediment, as the fermentation is not yet complete, and the return of warmer weather will lead to a re-commencement of this process.

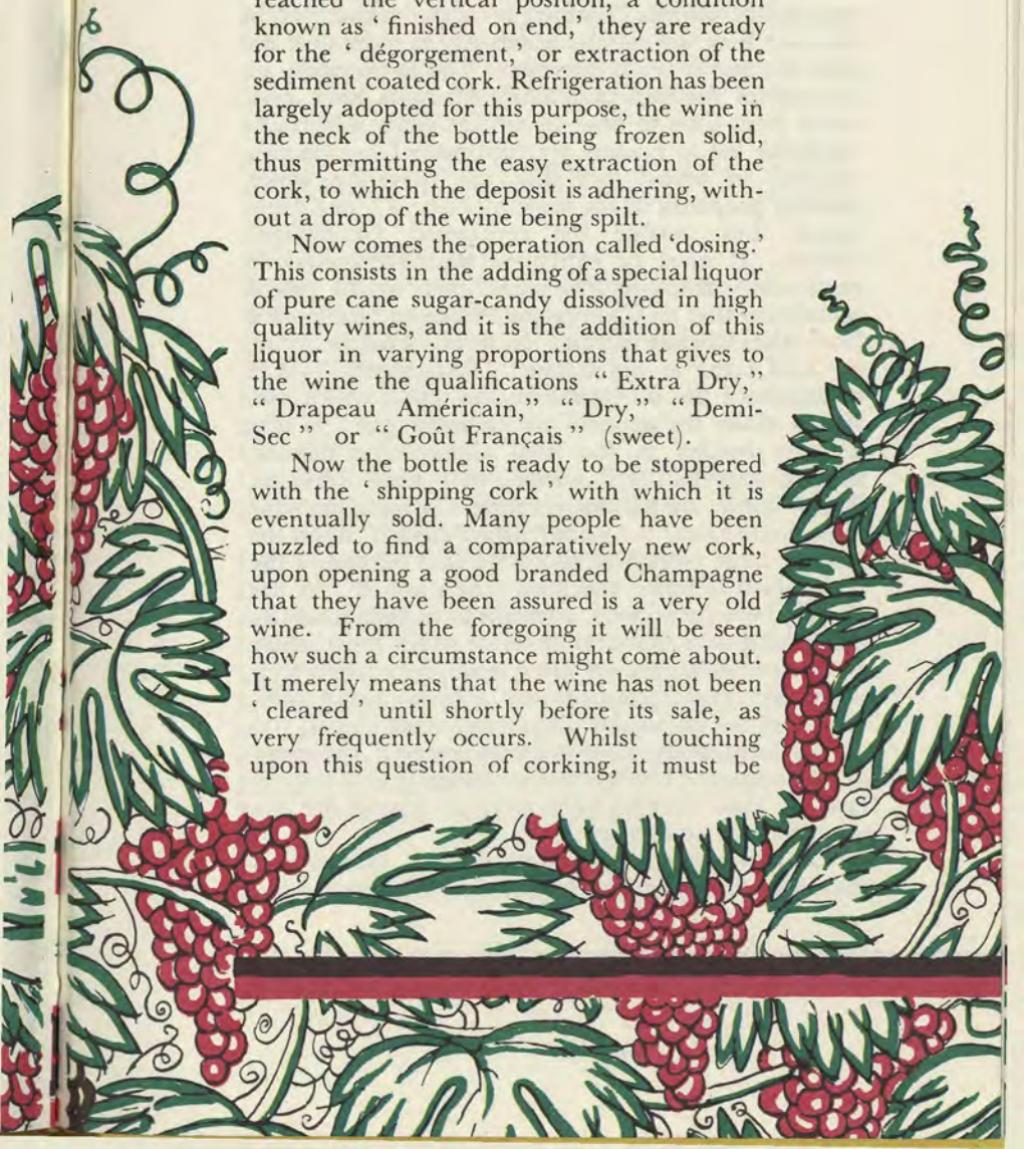

The bulk of the produce, however, is carried several stages further before finally reaching the outer world and its lucky consumer.

Towards the end of April most of the wine is bottled, the balance being placed on reserve in the spacious underground cellars of the shipper. Now it is important to note that at this time the wine is placed into the actual bottles that will subsequently be so elegantly 'dressed,' and in which the Champagne is eventually sold. The clarifying and re-fermentation processes which follow are all carried out while the wine is in the bottle. These bottles are so made that they will withstand the considerable pressure to which they have to be subjected which may amount to as much as 7 or 8 atmospheres, and the inside of the glass must be absolutely smooth to prevent any possibility of sediment adhering to it.

The bottle having been filled, it is now firmly stoppered with a special cork, known as the 'drawing cork.' This, be it noted, is not the eventual 'shipping cork' which we know so well, but of this more anon. The next important step is to collect the sediment as it is generated, so that it may be removed from the bottle, and leave the wine crystal clear. This is done by placing the bottles upon special racks, known as 'desks.' At first the bottles recline cork downwards in the racks at an angle of 50 to 60 degrees, and every day, over a considerable period, each bottle is given a peculiar jerk and rotation, leaving it each time a little nearer the vertical. The object of this, of course, is to get all the sediment to settle upon the cork, and finally, when the bottles have actually reached the vertical position, a condition known as 'finished on end,' they are ready for the 'dégorgement,' or extraction of the sediment coated cork. Refrigeration has been largely adopted for this purpose, the wine in the neck of the bottle being frozen solid, thus permitting the easy extraction of the cork, to which the deposit is adhering, without a drop of the wine being spilt.

Now comes the operation called 'dosing.' This consists in the adding of a special liquor of pure cane sugar-candy dissolved in high quality wines, and it is the addition of this liquor in varying proportions that gives to the wine the qualifications "Extra Dry," "Drapeau Américain," "Dry," "Demi-Sec" or "Goût Français" (sweet).

Now the bottle is ready to be stoppered with the 'shipping cork' with which it is eventually sold. Many people have been puzzled to find a comparatively new cork, upon opening a good branded Champagne that they have been assured is a very old wine. From the foregoing it will be seen how such a circumstance might come about. It merely means that the wine has not been 'cleared' until shortly before its sale, as very frequently occurs. Whilst touching upon this question of corking, it must be mentioned that a Champagne cork should always be in actual contact with the Wine, so that when storing the bottle must always be placed upon its side.

Having now learnt something of the particular manner in which Champagne is produced, let us discover how we can be absolutely certain that the wine we buy is really genuine. This is necessary on account of the fact that many attempts have been made from time to time to market wines which one might be led to assume are legitimate Champagnes, whereas in actual fact they are sparkling wines, possibly prepared in the same manner as true Champagne, but outside the recognised Champagne district. It must be explained that French law is particularly strict on this point, even to the extent of insisting that no Champagne Wine can be exported from the Rheims district in barrel without losing its legal right to the name "Champagne." As a consequence the only wine in the world which can rightly claim the appellation "Champagne" is that actually bottled in the legal Champagne district, from grapes gathered within that same confines. Every bottle containing genuine Champagne wine must further bear the word "Champagne" upon the label in large type, and also upon that portion of the cork which is inside the neck of the bottle. As has already been mentioned, attempts have been made by many producers of sparkling wines to get round these precise requirements, by using upon their labels such terms as "Vins Champagnisés." By an act of 1927, the use of this particular phrase was made illegal.

Unfortunately the peculiar shape and 'dressing' of a Champagne bottle is not protected in any way by law, so that this provides an easy means for the unscrupulous imitator.

Another even more subtle form of imitation is that sometimes practised by manufacturers whose wines are made actually in the recognised Champagne district.

Their labels usually bear the name of a town well known as being in the area, but unless the word 'Champagne' appears on label and cork the wine can in no way be accepted as genuine.

The classical Vintage years of Champagne are 1874, 1884, 1889, 1892, 1893, 1900, 1904, 1906, 1911, 1913, 1919, 1920, 1921.

BURGUNDY

In the good year fifteen hundred and twelve splendid King, Louis XII of France found it politic (and, we would like to think, pleasurable) to send to King James IV of Scotland a present. An especial present. A gift, indeed, that should completely befit an occasion so regal and so gallant. It is not particularly surprising, therefore, to learn that in these circumstances King Louis ordered a great painted ship to be filled with puncheons of delicious wine from the province of old Burgundy, and in despatching it

North of the Tweed, introduced the famous Burgundian blood of the grape into the British Isles for the first time.

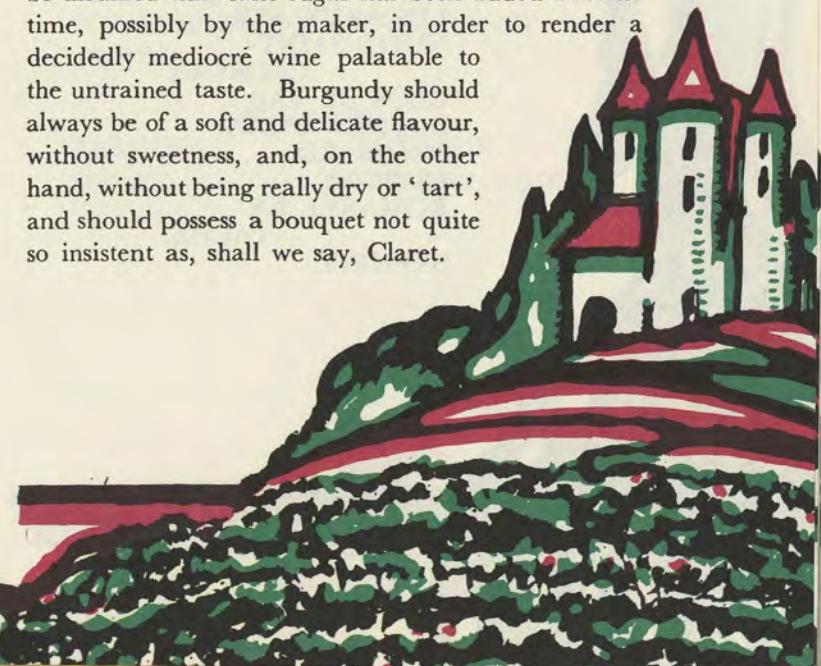

Since that great occasion the vintages of Burgundy have established for themselves a reputation throughout the whole civilised world second only perhaps to the Champagnes. The old province of Burgundy itself passed into a memory through the shambles of the French Revolution, but its glorious vines live on. Take a look at the map of France. Over towards her Eastern boundary you will find five 'departements' that bear the following names:—Côte D'Or, Saone-et-Loire, Yonne, Ain and Aube. It is from these districts, particularly the former, that the magnificent red and white wines called Burgundies are produced. No wine produced outside wines, most of the better known white wines coming from the Yonne, with the town of Chablis as its centre. For the purpose of classification the Côte D'Or is divided into two districts, the first known as the Côte de Nuits, and the second as the Côte de Beaune. From the Côte de Nuits come the marvellous Chambertin, quite a giant among the Red Burgundies, the Romanée-Conti, and the Clos de Vougeot. The Côte de Beaune produces such fine wines as Corton, Clos du Roi, Les Renardes, and, of course, Beaune itself.

The 'departement' of Saone-et-Loire is principally famed for the wines of Mâcon (red) and those of Pouilly (white).

One important point worthy of note is that true Burgundy should never show any tendency to sweetness. If the wine displays this 'taint' it may usually be assumed that cane sugar has been added at some time, possibly by the maker, in order to render a decidedly mediocre wine palatable to the untrained taste. Burgundy should always be of a soft and delicate flavour, without sweetness, and, on the other hand, without being really dry or 'tart', and should possess a bouquet not quite so insistent as, shall we say, Claret.

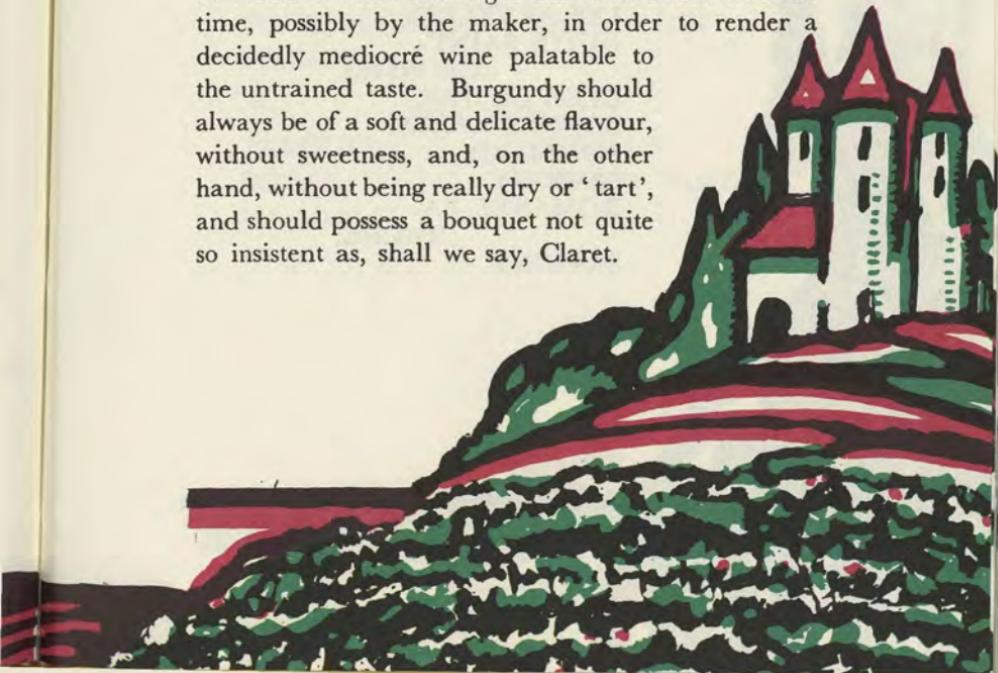

their boundaries can properly be called Burgundies, although the law is certainly not so stringent upon this point as in the case of the Champagnes. True Burgundy, like Champagne, is the produce of certain particular vines, grown upon a particular soil, and under specific conditions which are only to be found in the districts named above. On the other hand, real Burgundy is marketed in such a manner that it is very much more difficult to obtain assurance of accurate origin than is the case with either Champagne or Claret. For example, in purchasing a Château Bottled Claret one can be absolutely certain that the wine is the careful and perfect product of the vineyard of the actual Château. In the case of Burgundy these conditions are fundamentally different, for a single great vineyard bearing a famous name and situated, perhaps in a commune of equal fame, may be split up among as many as a dozen owners and vintagers, each producing wine in their own fashion, and possessing their own brand labels, etc. Even so, the wine is eventually sold under the name of the whole vineyard, and this fact renders it necessary for the connoisseur to exercise extreme care in selecting a Burgundy that will be consistent with his exact tastes.

The Côte D'Or, first among the Burgundy producing 'departements,' is renowned for its Red wines, most of the better known white wines coming from the Yonne, with the town of Chablis as its centre. For the purpose of classification the Côte D'Or is divided into two districts, the first known as the Côte de Nuits, and the second as the Côte de Beaune. From the Côte de Nuits come the marvellous Chambertin, quite a giant among the Red Burgundies, the Romanée-Conti, and the Clos de Vougeot. HOCKS (Rhine Wines) STEINWEINS & MOSELLES

HOCKS.

Germany cannot be said to be a prolific producer of wine, at least of wine made from the actual grapes of the Fatherland, although quite an appreciable quantity is fermented from imported grapes. Of these latter, however, we need not deal here, except only to warn the neophyte that such wines can never be considered as being up to anything like fine quality, and are therefore to be avoided. Really fine German wine is never very plentiful, but this fact may be regarded as offset to some degree by the exceedingly fine quality of what is produced—the luscious and fruity Hocks, Steinweins, and Moselles.

The term Hock is a somewhat general one, and is usually understood to mean a wine of quality originating in the districts of the Rhineland. For purposes of classification the Rhineland is split into three main districts, Rheingau, Rheinhessen, and Rheinpfalz, and each of these districts gives us a wine of individual character.

The most famous of these is the Rheingau, which occupies some twenty kilometres of the right bank of the Rhine, from Niederwald to Lorch.

The RHEINGAU wines are almost exclusively made from Riesling grapes, and are somewhat crisper in flavour than those originating from the other two districts. They are distinguished for their great elegance.

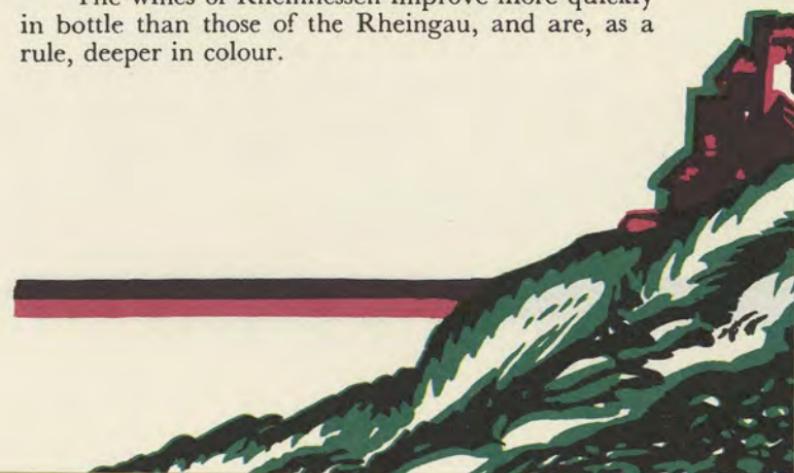

The Rheingau includes the famous growths of Rauenthal, Erbach, Marcobrunn, Hattenheim, Steinberg, Oestrich, Schloss Vollrads Winkel, Schloss Johannisberg, Geisenheim and Rudesheim, the wines of which are noted for their raciness and fruit.

HOCHHEIM is included in the Rheingau district and produces some excellent wines. It is generally accepted that the English generic term of Hock, used to designate all Rhein wines, is derived from the name of the town Hochheim.

RHEINHESSEN extends along the left bank of the Rhine from Worms to Bingen. The Riesling and the Oesterreicher are the two vines most cultivated in this district.

Rheinhessen wines are somewhat milder than those of the Rheingau, and show more variety than the latter. In Oppenheim full-bodied wines possessing great fruit are made; Nierstein wines are mellower, but at the same time more elegant.

The wines of Rheinhessen improve more quickly in bottle than those of the Rheingau, and are, as a rule, deeper in colour.

RHEINPFALZ. Wines originating from the Rheinpfalz, which is the largest wine-producing district in Germany, are familiarly known to Englishmen as Palatinate wines.

The Rheinpfalz enjoys an extraordinarily mild climate, and in the Mittelhaardt district, between Neustadt and Duerkheim, where the vines are grown close to the ground in order to obtain as much heat as possible from the earth as well as from the sun, the finest wines are produced.

The best known growths come from the districts of Ungstein, Duerkheim, Wachenheim, Forst, Deidesheim and Ruppertsberg.

The "Auslese" wines from all these districts, made from grapes specially selected for their ripeness, are remarkable for their fruit, bouquet, and great body.

The "Trockenbeeren-Auslese" wines are made from grapes that have almost reached the raisin stage (hence the word "Trockenbeeren," i.e., "Dry Berries"), and are therefore very highly concentrated, possessing a great deal of fruit and natural sweetness.

Other terms indicating that wines have been made from selected grapes, such as "Edelbeeren-Auslese," "Edelgewaechs," "Spaetlese," mean that the grapes have been allowed to hang on the vines longer after the vintage gathering in order to take advantage of fine, sunny Autumn days.

MOSELLES

The wines of the MOSELLE and its tributaries, the SAAR and the RUWER, are remarkable for their delicate perfume and subtle flavour due to a great extent to the silicious nature of the soil upon which the Riesling vine thrives so well.

They may be called the ideal luncheon wines owing to their comparatively low alcoholic strength and their pleasing natural dryness. From a medical point of view they can be strongly recommended, as they are quickly assimilated and therefore easily digested.

The finest growths of the Moselle proper are to be found on either bank of the river. To name but a few districts in alphabetical order : Berncastel-Cues, Brauneberg, Dhron, Enkirch, Erden, Graach, Josefs-hof, Lieser, Piesport, Reil, Uerzig, Wehlen and Zeltingen.

The names of the different vineyards are added to that of the district under such tempting titles as " Himmelreich "—Kingdom of Heaven ; " Rosenberg "—Garden of Roses ; " Goldtröpfchen "—Drops of Gold ; " Wurzgarten "—Garden of Spices.

STEINWEIN.

STEINWEIN is grown in the vineyards round about Wurzburg.

Since the Middle Ages it has always been bottled in the famous squat Frankish flagons called "Bocksbeutel."

It is a wine of great elegance and rare bouquet with quite a surprising amount of body and flavour in spite of its pale colour.

1921 HOCKS AND MOSELLES.

A magnificent vintage, considered the best for a generation or more. Particularly the Hocks. The wines are very full, round, and vinous. The Hocks have great keeping properties.

PORT

Port has a peculiar and romantic interest for all English-speaking people, since for over a hundred years, from the middle of the eighteenth until well past the middle of the nineteenth centuries, it was not only the best known wine in England, but it was the only wine that many highly conservative people would allow to appear upon their tables. It came, indeed, to be regarded, with Roast Beef, as being symbolic of English domestic life. There is a story told of a Warwickshire squire who, shortly after Queen Victoria's Coronation, found that a son of his had secretly introduced some bottles of Claret into the house. The squire, his face distorted with fury and contempt, impounded the bottles and poured their contents down the nearest convenient pig-sty, apostrophizing his son thus whilst doing so : " How dare ye bring these new-fangled foreign wines into my house ? Good honest English Port was good enough for my father and my grandfather, and it shall be good enough for my son ! "

Which shows that a little ignorance is often a blessing in disguise.

Port is still the most generally popular wine in England, and it is the only wine (even Sherry not excepted) that you may always be certain of finding wherever a British Inn Sign swings. Naturally it varies very much in quality, but it is always sure to be genuine Port, as it is a very serious offence to sell a wine as Port unless it satisfies the definition of being a "fortified wine produced in the region of the Douro Valley and exported through the bar of Oporto." At the same time there is considerable difference between the beverage you will obtain by signifying assent to the question, "Port, me lord?" huskily whispered by the butler at a dinner-party in Carlton House Terrace, and what you get by falling in with the suggestion, "What about a glass of Port Wine, dearie?" in the Private Bar of "Ye Olde Duck and Chinaman," round the corner.

Port, as we know it now, is produced by the judicious blending of various wines whose process of fermentation is then retarded by the addition of a small quantity of Brandy, which causes it to mature very slowly and to become mellow with age. The final product falls under one of three headings, depending upon the way in which it is matured. It is either Vintage Port, or Tawny Port, or Ruby Port.

Vintage Port is the wine of one particular year, and is only produced when the wines of that year are particularly fine. All Vintage Ports have a peculiar character of their own, and the true Port connoisseur can tell at a sip to what particular year a Vintage Port belongs. It is bottled two, and sometimes three, years after the vintage and matures entirely in bottle.

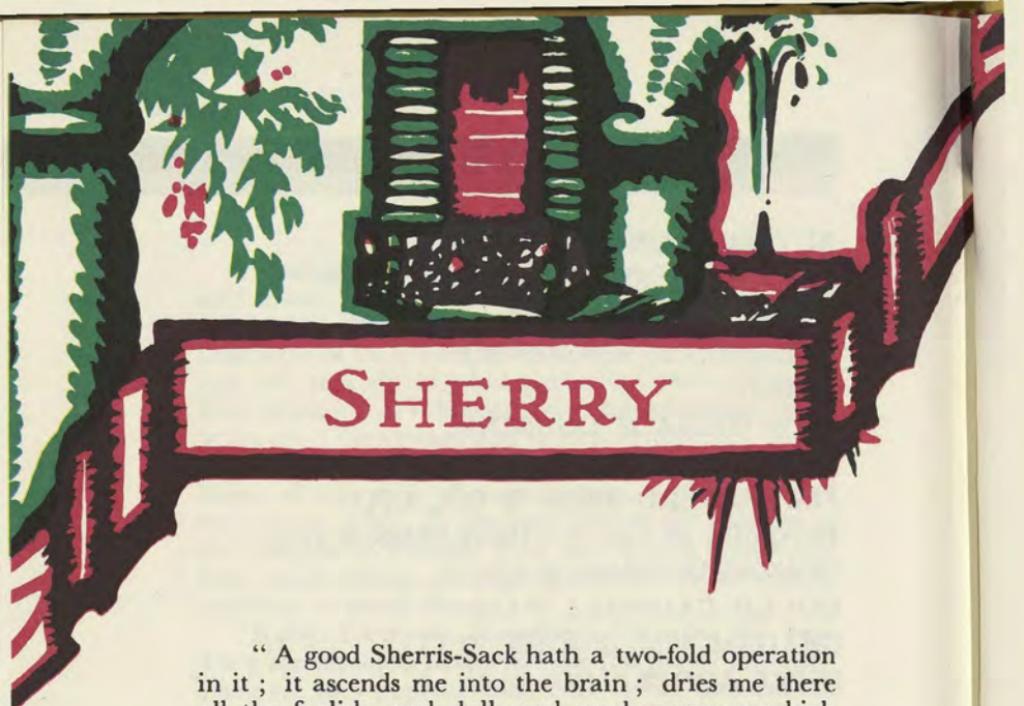

Tawny Port, so called from its lighter colour, is a blend of the wine of several years, and is matured entirely in casks. It does not possess the richness or the bouquet of Vintage Port, and is, as a rule, made from wines which, although good, are not sufficiently excellent to stand alone.

Ruby Ports are something between the two. They are matured partly in cask and partly in bottle. They are very popular with Port lovers who cannot afford the high prices which Vintage Ports now fetch. A really good Ruby Port may even at times deceive an expert, but it cannot be relied upon, and varies from bottle to bottle.

Port is shipped under the names of the Blenders. Most of the old-established shippers have English names, thus bearing witness to the fact that a hundred years ago Port was in very truth an English wine, manufactured in Portugal by the English and for the English.

The best Port Vintages were 1890, 1896, 1900, 1908, 1912, 1917 and 1919, and the principal Oporto Shippers, under whose names the Vintage Ports are sold, are:

SHERRY

" A good Sherris-Sack hath a two-fold operation in it ; it ascends me into the brain ; dries me there all the foolish, and dull, and crudy vapours which environ it, makes it apprehensive, quick, inventive, full of nimble, fiery and delectable shape, which delivered o'er to the voice which is the birth, becomes excellent wit. The second property of your excellent Sherris is the warming of the blood ; which before cold and settled left the liver white and pale, which is the badge of pusillanimity and cowardice ; but the Sherris warms it, and makes it course from the inwards to the parts extreme "—Thus spoke Shakespeare, through the lips of the robust Falstaff, and who will deny that he spoke from the heart? For the immortal Bard, akin to many great men of his time, was truly appreciative of the subtle vapours of 'Sherris-Sack,' or Sherry, as we have since learned to call it in an age when brevity is counted among the seven virtues. Yet, curiously enough, even 'Sherris-Sack' is a derivation, possessing an origin in 'Jerez-Sec'—Jerez being the name of the Spanish province from which this special wine has always been produced. Nowadays, of course, we are prone to include Madeira. Sherry, good Sherry, still remains among the first loves on the palate of the connoisseur, although, perhaps, its more general popularity is not now so great as it was fifty years ago. The direct reason for this lies in the fact that from one cause or another Sherries that were scarcely deserving of the name were from time to time foisted upon a market slow in discovering that ignorance is not always bliss. Be careful, therefore, in acquiring your Sherry, if you would enjoy its real delights as you should.

It must always be remembered that fine Sherry is as much the product of the expert blender as of the grower, and for this reason the shipper's name on the bottle is of considerable importance. That name must be one with a reputation behind it if you are to be quite sure of your ground.

The qualities of Sherry fall naturally into three main categories. The first is known as Fino, a delicate wine of pale colour and gentle fragrance. The second is called Amontillado, a heavier wine which demands a longer time to mellow and acquire its distinctive character and fuller flavour. The third is classed as Oloroso, and is a much darker and heavier wine than the others. Now, of course, each of these main classes cover many degrees and varieties of excellence. Thus we find the famous Vino de Pasto falls into the Fino classification, while Amoroso, or old Golden Sherry and the Brown Sherries are members of the last class. A great feature of the finest Sherry is the fact that, not only does it continue to improve with age, but its fine qualities are not impaired by being left uncorked. A decanter of Sherry may therefore be relied upon over an indefinite period, even if left unstoppered.

Here is a list of shippers whose products can always be relied upon when their names appear on the labels.

THE END
OF THE WINES

CONCLUDING REMARKS ABOUT SPECIAL OCCASIONS.

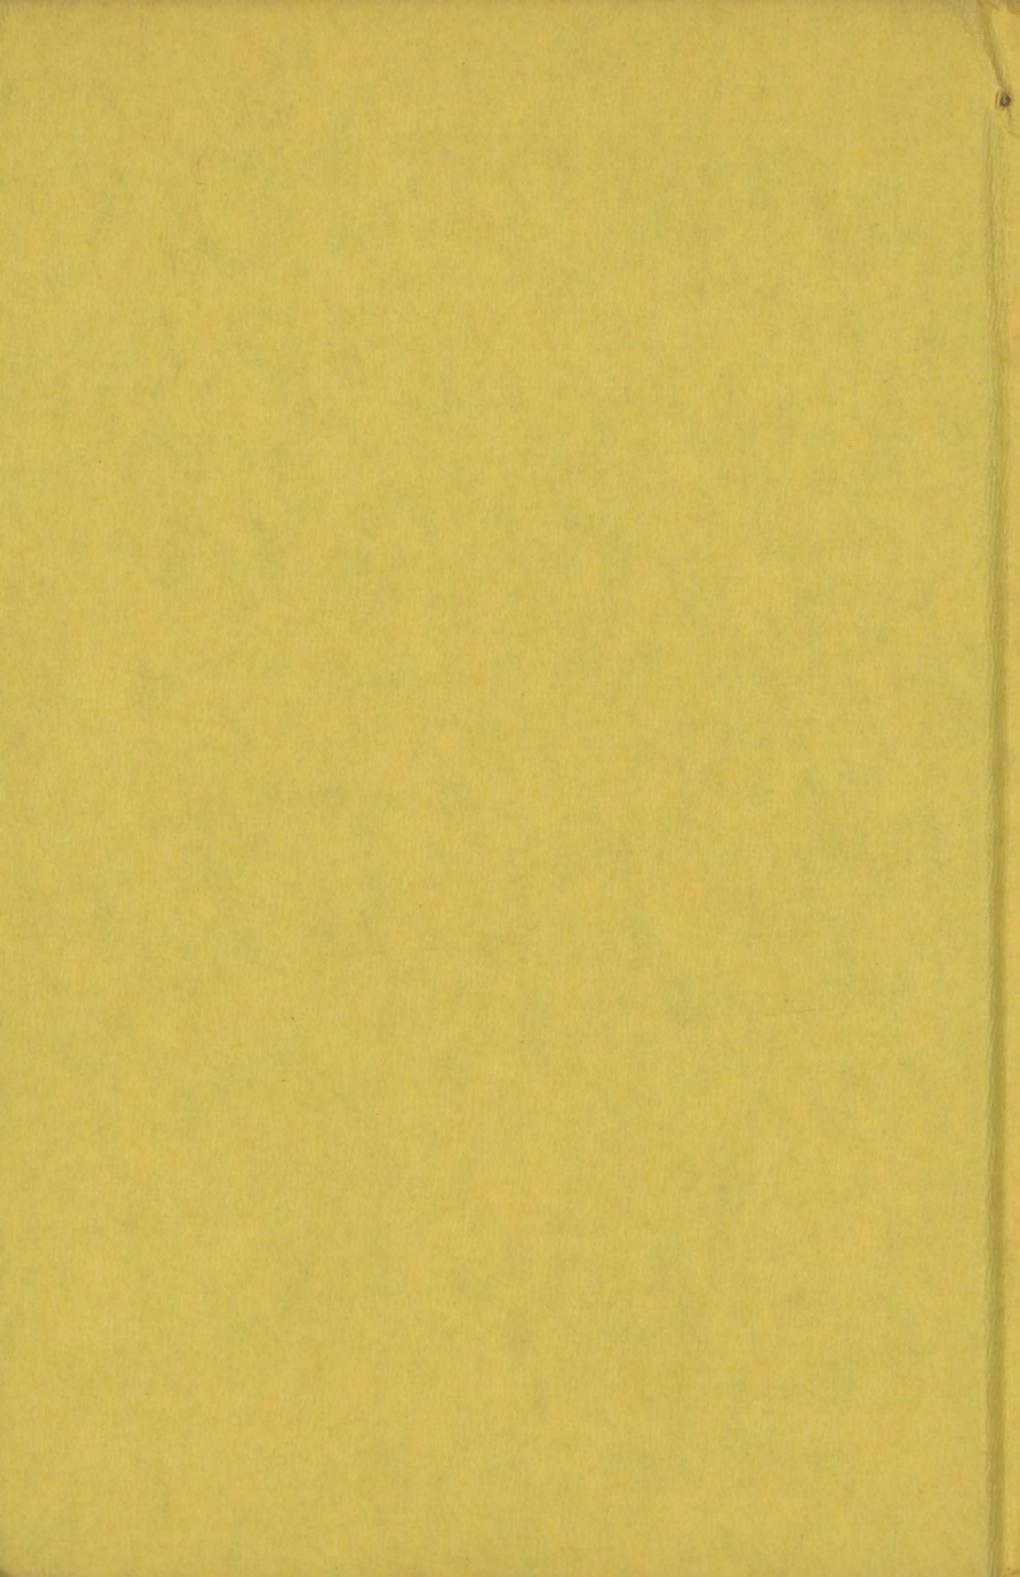

In the pages of this book we have endeavoured to give, as succinctly as possible, a compendium of drinks of all kinds, and we only hope that it will be found useful by those who are wise enough to secure a copy before the Censor gets upon its track. There is little to add. We may mention that all the characters in the book are real persons, and that everything we have said about them is true, in substance and in fact.

There is, however, one last word of advice which we feel bound to offer to you, one which is in some sort in the nature of a word of warning ; and that is to be particularly careful not to produce the wrong kind of drinks for the great occasions of your life. When, for instance, your tailor pays you a formal call with a view to obtaining a reduction of the amount of your credit with him, you will not appease him by offering to split a bottle of Champagne with him, pleading the ghastliness of your poverty the while. And never offer ginger-beer to the lady whose favour you intend to curry, however honourably, before the evening is out. Port should rarely be served at breakfast, and it is not correct to offer a parting guest a cocktail, unless you feel that you have given him such a bad dinner that he is probably going on to have another one somewhere else, and needs an appetizer.

Many books have been written on the subject of what wines should be served with different foods, but the best and only real guide is the individual experience of each one of us. Remember always that there are certain people who cannot drink Burgundy, others that cannot bear Champagne or Port. It is always safest to ask your guests what they would like to drink. If they say they do not mind, it means that they want Champagne ; if they prefer any other kind of wine they will say so ; the psychology of this is quite clear ; Champagne is always expensive, so there is a natural reticence about demanding it outright ; other wines are actually probably more expensive, but they can be cheaper, and there is therefore no hesitation in suggesting them.

Wine is a solace and a consolation, and it has been given to man for his happiness. To deny oneself the pleasure of Vintage is to declare oneself to be a pessimist and a Kill-Joy. If this book should, by any mischance, fall into the hands of such an one, we can only hope that he will peruse it earnestly, with the end that when he has finished it he will take a cab to the Savoy Hotel, and will penetrate reverently into that sanctum where Harry Craddock plies the Art which is the main theme upon which this book, has been conceived. For without the ingenuity, knowledge and skill of Harry Craddock it could never have seen the light of day.

Craddock to compile this beautiful cocktail recipe book, intended to serve as a complete guide for earnest students of the bar. His was no idle boast. THE SAVOY COCKTAIL BOOK was and still is considered the most comprehensive and easy-to-read listing of exciting popular and unusual mixed drinks. Craddock also added an interesting section on wines, champagnes and aperitifs to his survey. The book contained the "true, authentic and incontrovertible story of the origin of the Cocktail," which seems to be more historically believable after you have savored two or three glasses of Craddock's delicious drinks. Gilbert Rumbold added witty drawings in the distinctive and popular Art Deco style. The final "mix" was effective, instructive, and entertaining.

Now we have updated and expanded THE SAVOY COCKTAIL BOOK to include the latest in cocktail wizardry and tastes. The result—a comprehensive cocktail guide in the 1970s that retains the charm, the daring spirit, and the know-how of the 1930s. If there was a "cordon bleu" school of drink mixing, this book would be its bible!
